With eleven straight games laid away where the Yankees can never recover them, Stahl's "well-oiled machine" prepared to take a chance with all sorts of hoodoos today when they went out to Fenway Park, vowing that they would make it thirteen straight.

Harry Wolverton did about the best he was capable of doing yesterday when he was beaten, 5 to 4 and 6 to 4, in the first double-header of the Red Sox series, so the Bostonians were in a position to make good their threat today.

"Buck" O'Brien and Joe Wood, with Pape or Cicotte as possible alternatives, were on Jake Stahl's card for this afternoon. Wolverton used his best man when he tried Russell Ford yesterday, and the Red Sox beat the "spit ball" wonder of last year. It hardly looked as if Ford had lost his cunning. Rather it appeared that the Yankees' fielding outfit had gone to pieces and that the Red Sox were nearly twice as good as the Bostonians who were easy for Ford last year.

Seventeen thousand saw the second game of yesterday's double-header, and with good weather an estimate of 25,000 for today's double bill did not look like a wild hazard.

Selectmen Win First Round in Revere Fight

Round one is ended in the Revere "fire fight."

Today Revere townsfolk are awaiting the sounding of the gong by Referee "Jack" Sheehan for round two.

The last set-to in the bout has put some joy in the camp of the supporters of the deposed board of fire engineers. But the end of round one left the Selectmen, who deposed the engineers, on top and marking time in readiness for more fight.

Ernest Acker, Bruno Hertung and A. A. Cassassa, who composed the board, reinstated "Chief" Arthur L. Kimball as a permanent fireman. The board had previously deposed Kimball, which caused all the trouble. The board promised a meeting next Friday to decide whether Kimball shall be reinstated as chief.

On their side, the Selectmen, while the fire board was meeting, scooped down here off the fire records and put them in a vault. It had been planned to put the records in the possession of Jack Sheehan, chosen as referee in the town's fire controversy.

Ringside rumor—The goodies have it that the Selectmen may propose to call it a "draw" a compromise, but Chairman Gallinio of the deposed board, says he won't stand for it.

Got Printon's Goat, Thanks to Bit of Prize "Detecting"

"Johnny" Powers, the plain-clothes man and Sherlock Holmes of Police Station 1, Cambridge, today recovered Rob Printon's mysteriously missing goat. "Johnny" found the goat in Watertown, but how or where he will not say.

Printon's goat is a pet augora, the pride o the Printon premises at No. 107 Fayerweather street, and next friend to all the Mt. Auburn's section that's living. A few days ago the goat disappeared and failed to return. The police were informed.

Captain "Jim" Murray of Station 1 said: "Johnny Powers will find that goat if anybody will."

"Johnny" sleuthed for a goat quietly. Today he walked in from Watertown to Printon's yard, leading the goat.

'BLACKHAND' LETTER DEMANDS $1,000 OF LYNN FRUIT MAN

A "blackhand" letter, threatening death if $1,000 was not handed over, was received by Frank Giunino, an Italian fruit dealer, of No. 319 Union street, Lynn. The letter was postmarked from the Hanover street station in Boston, written in Italian and read:

"Leave $1,000 at midnight on Saturday beneath the West Lynn Bridge. Fail to do so and you will be killed. When you do this, come alone with the money and do not tell the police anything about it."

It was signed, with the usual skull and crossbones, by the "Black Hand Society."

YALE MATHEMATICS EXPERT TAKES BRIDE

WATERBURY, Ct., June 29.—Professor Andrew Wheeler Phillips of New Haven and Mrs. Agnes Dubois Northrop of Waterbury were married by the Rev. Frederick D. Buckley, rector of Trinity Church. Professor Phillips is a distinguished mathematician of Yale. He has been for many years dean of the Graduate School.

TWO MEN HURT IN 3-CORNERED CRASH

An automobile, an electric car and a bicycle were in a three-cornered collision at Commonwealth avenue and Blandford street. P. C. Hunting, riding in an automobile owned and operated by Richard H. Hallford of the Hotel Princeton, Allston, and John E. Keyr, the bicyclist, were hurt, but not severely.

HEADLESS BODY IS BURIED

WOONSOCKET, R. I., June 29.—The headless body of the woman found in Blackstone River last Tuesday off Dane's Grove, and which has furnished the greatest murder mystery this section ever knew, was buried in an unnamed grave in the Potter's Field this afternoon. There was no ceremony, nor was the grave numbered.

Buried at the same time in an adjoining grave was the body of Frank Reynolds, the Manville suicide, who had no home, no relatives to claim his body.

Until the mystery of the headless woman is solved the body will remain in a pauper's grave, though the murder victim may have been of good family.

Hundreds of people from this city, most of them mill operatives, joined the police today in the search for the missing head.

The volunteer searchers who flocked to Dane's Grove section today were spurred on by the offer of the $1,000 reward made by Governor Pothier. The mills shut down for a half holiday.

Three Promising Clews.

Three promising clews were followed by the police today. The first led to an investigation of the finding of the skin of a human hand, a right thumb and a surgeon's rubber glove on the river bank, directly across from where the body was discovered. The police thought that other parts of a body might have been buried nearby.

Rope Furnishes a Clew.

A second clew which has given Detective Sergeant Sutton, in charge of the case, hope of arresting the slayer, was furnished by the rope found tied about the dead woman's limbs and body. The police believe they have traced the place from which the rope came. Detective Sergeant Sutton said he had several persons under surveillance as a result of the rope clew.

Still another important clew was furnished by Medical Examiner Myers as a result of his examination of the woman's body. The medical examiner told the police that the head must have been severed by some one familiar with bodies, most likely by a man who had been used seeing animals killed or who had killed them himself.

Acting on this theory, the police today said they had located a man they intended to interview in the belief that he might be able to throw some light on the mystery.

Woman Strangled.

Dr. Myers further told the police the woman must have been strangled, because there was scarcely any air left in the lungs. The body was decapitated by a sharp knife, the medical examiner declared.

"Apparently the job was done by some one familiar with bodies," Dr. Myers said. "By that I do not mean a doctor or a surgeon, but one who has become used to seeing animals killed or who, maybe, has killed them himself."

The man being watched by the police as a result of this theory suggested by Dr. Myers is well known in this city.

BRYAN SIDEWALK STOLEN! BUT NOT A PLANK WAS IN IT

LINCOLN, Neb., June 29.—Vandals some time last night, taking advantage of the absence from their Fairview home of William J. Bryan and members of his family at Baltimore, tore up and hauled away fifty-six two-foot squares of cement sidewalk leading from what is known as the "Newspaper Correspondents' Wigwam" to the home.

$10,000 BLAZE IN WAKEFIELD BLOCK

Fire in the Odd Fellows' building, Main street, Wakefield, seriously threatened the business district of the town. The loss of $10,000 was confined to the various Odd Fellows' lodges. The fire started on the third floor and burned through the roof. Other fraternal organizations occupying parts of the building suffered a loss of most of their regalia. Several small stores in the basement of the block were damaged by water.

BALTIMORE, June 29.—"The New York delegation will make every effort to nominate Mr. Clark," said Senator O'Gorman today.

BALTIMORE, June 29.—A desperate struggle to capture the Underwood vote was made by supporters of Governor Wilson on the one hand, and of Champ Clark on the other hand, at the Democratic National Convention today.

John T. McGraw of West Virginia, who is reputed personally to favor Wilson, but who is a member of a delegation instructed for Clark, was authority for the statement that friendly conferences were in progress between Wilson and Underwood lieutenants.

Ex-Senator Dubois of Idaho, one of the managers of Champ Clark's campaign, was reported to have held a conference today with John H. Bankhead, who made the speech placing Oscar W. Underwood in nomination. Mr. Dubois declined absolutely to discuss the subject of his conference with Bankhead.

Cooler tonight and tomorrow is the word of comfort the Weather Man hands out to brow-mopping mortals today. The forecast was:

"Fair tonight and Sunday. Cooler tonight. Light westerly winds."

It was not today beyond a doubt. At noon the climbing quicksilver was perilously close to 90.

The Weather Man was perfectly definite about the cool weather coming. "It will drop tonight as low as 65," he said. "Then this westerly wind will freshen up and turn more into the west, and we won't go above 80 tomorrow. West wind is always cool, unless it turns a little to the south."

VETERAN BELL RINGER OF PORTSMOUTH DEAD

PORTSMOUTH, N. H., June 29.—William P. Gardner, the veteran bellringer, is dead at his home here. For more than forty years he had charge of the bell at the South Wardroom and during that time tolled the bell for three martyr Presidents.

WOMAN KILLED IN AUTO CRASH

WORCESTER, June 29.—An automobile going thirty miles an hour collided with a car of the Boston & Worcester street railway going at high speed at the intersection of the trolley tracks with what is known as the Grafton road today, killing Mrs. Fillette Maynard, eighty-one, of Brockton, and badly injuring Mrs. Eunice Maynard, sixty-seven, of Shrewsbury, daughter-in-law of the dead woman; Mrs. William B. Maynard, forty-five, of Brockton, and William B. Maynard, forty-five, son and daughter-in-law of the dead woman.

A peculiar feature of the accident was the injuries to William B. Maynard. He was operating the automobile. He has but one arm, the right, and that was fracturing. He also received several bad scalp wounds and is probably internally injured.

The party were coming from the Harrington Farm in Shrewsbury and were on their way to visit the grave of the husband of Mrs. Eunice Maynard, in Northboro. When the automobile neared the point on the Grafton road where it crosses the tracks of the Boston & Worcester Railway Company, Maynard says he sounded the automobile horn. Not hearing any signal from the trolley car he continued his [illegible] thirty miles an hour.

2,000 MEN LEAVE NAVY YARD UNTIL PAY IS ASSURED

When the whistle blows at the Charlestown navy yard Monday morning there will be only about sixty-four men to go to work, the rest of the nearly 2,000 civilian employes having decided to quit work until Congress passes the navy appropriation bill. Soldiers and sailors, however, must work or be deserters. The civilian employes are free to leave when they want to.

The sixty-four men who will remain at the yard are ship keepers and watchmen, power plant men, clerks and a few men in the other trades.

The AMERICAN goes into more homes than all the other evening papers of Boston combined. It is the Quality newspaper.

RENEW THE KOSHER STRIKE TONIGHT

A full came today in the kosher meat strike, because of the fact that it is the Jewish Sabbath and all of the butcher and meat shops were closed. After sunset tonight the shops will reopen, and plans have been made by the strike committee of women for picketing in the South and North Ends and the closing of shops in Cambridge, Chelsea and Lynn.

The committee planning tomorrow's parade and protest meeting will endeavor to interest Gentiles in the movement for lower meat prices.

ference with Chairman Ollie James and Senator W. J. Stone, of Missouri, two of the leading supporters of Clark.

Hundreds after hundreds of persons, seemingly half of them women, streamed into the convention hall before noon today, leaving one of Baltimore's busiest days, to see the waging of the great battle for a presidential nominee. The galleries filled first, presenting a picture of color and animation. In this section of the building could be seen the greatest number of women, each gently or frantically wielding a fan, so that the entire balcony seemed to be in motion.

Bright spots of color flashed here and there, on a picture hat, a dress or a fan. The delegates came slowly in twos and threes. They had been up practically all night and knew no one would seek their seats before they could get here.

Bryan May Make New Attack.

When asked whether he would become a candidate for a fourth nomination as Democratic standard-bearer, William J. Bryan today said:

"I have not reached the point where that would be a pertinent question."

The colonel was disinclined to comment on the vote of the New York delegation, which he had attacked earlier on the floor of the convention. That he might direct another fulmination against the "predatory interests" on the floor of the convention was indicated, however, when in referring to the New York vote he said:

"I have not thought wise to issue bulletins or smokeb.ombs. Whenever the time comes, if it does come, I will make an announcement regarding that."

The Nebraskan avoided discussion of the platform, largely written by himself and submitted by the resolutions committee to the convention.

"Do you believe a candidate will be selected today?" he was asked.

"I do not prophesy," answered Mr. Bryan.

Aside from a discussion of the platform, will you say what your personal views are concerning a single term for the President, was the next question.

Has Been Willing "At Times."

"For eighteen years, ever since I tried to secure an amendment to the Constitution," he answered, "I have been opposed to two terms. In my three campaigns I urged against a second term.

"You have always been willing to accept one term?" was suggested.

"There have been times when I have been willing to accept a first term. You must be precise in your questions," retorted the colonel.

"The New York delegation will make every effort to elect Mr. Clark on the democratic nominee," said Senator James A. O'Gorman, as the delegates were entering the hall. "So far as I know, there will be no switch to any other man. We held a conference, and a poll last night before we dropped Harmon and decided upon this course."

William H. Fitzpatrick, delegate from Buffalo, corroborated Judge O'Gorman's statement. "I am positive," he said, "that Governor Wilson will receive no support from the New York delegation."

Chairman James called the convention to order at 1:07 p. m., and after the invocation the thirteenth ballot was ordered.

James Suggests Majority Rule.

The sensation of the day before the call to order was the prediction by Chairman Ollie James that the deadlock would be broken before afternoon had passed. Chairman James declared that the convention would complete its labors by 9 o'clock tonight.

Abrogation of the two-thirds rule was suggested by Mr. James as the probable means of overcoming the deadlock. He said he felt he had the power, and that this power might be exercised, in order to bring about the nomination of the candidate having the majority of the votes. Chairman James did not say he would abrogate the rule, but that he had the power to do so at any time that a majority was prepared to make him. He asserted that if he wanted "to ride rough shod" he could at any time entertain a motion to abrogate the two-thirds rule and insist that it is proper to select the nominee by a majority. Champ Clark had a majority on the twelfth ballot.

Never but once in the history of the Democratic party, and that exception in the case of Van Buren, 1844, has a candidate for President under the two-thirds rule, who has received a majority of votes in the convention, been denied the nomination. Champ Clark received a majority of the tenth ballot last night, when New York's solid ninety was thrown his way. Should he fail now to get the nomination, precedents will have been upset.

Mr. James predicted that the vice-presidential nominee would be selected in twenty minutes and the platform adopted without contest after the presidential nomination.

No Recess Today.

"We will sit continuously today from the time of meeting at 1 o'clock," he said. "There will be no recess, and while I will not hurry things along, to the detriment of anybody's cause, I firmly believe that everything will be over by 9 o'clock this evening."

The last balloting of the convention early this morning before adjournment formed the story of a stampede that failed—the narrative of a running, beautifully managed, attack and defence. It brought Champ Clark to the possession on one ballot of a majority of the convention but it failed by eight votes of the shaking loose of the bulldog hold that the Wilson men had on their nest egg strength.

To keep the record straight and have a boiling point for mental calculation, one must mark back a couple of hours to pick up the essential fact that when the 11th ballot was taken at 9:42 o'clock last night, the first of the night work, Wilson showed a total strength of 354 votes. This is of chief importance because of all of what followed in the early hours of the day.

Lively and Bitter Fight.

Jumping to the close of the fight to make the connection plain when the twelfth ballot had been duly recorded and the tired delegates had gone to bed Wilson had on his total column the identical 354 votes with which he started the night. The remainder of this story is a tale full of a rapidly running fight, lively and bitter, that took place in the early hours of today. Every shade of its multi-colored setting is touched with the most brilliant light of the individual color. Flags, music, men, frantic with enthusiasm, hope and fear; women dizzy with the excitement of the morning and expert leaders running at full tilt from delegation to delegation to tighten the guy lines of the several elements, all combined to make a scene that no person who saw it will ever forget.

It was nineteen minutes after midnight. The eleventh ballot had been started. Hardly had the 24 votes of Alabama been placed mechanically in the Underwood column before it was evident that a ferment was in progress. Roger Sullivan of Illinois was making a personal round of the delegations. He stopped long at Pennsylvania. He even sought William Jennings Bryan for a talk and Bryan immediately got up and went to the New York delegation, where he talked with Charles F. Murphy.

Bay State Had Passed.

Connecticut had wavered in her decision and had asked to be passed. Massachusetts had followed suit. The atmosphere was full of uncertainty.

New York was reached in the balloting while the floor work of the leaders progressed. The delegation from the Empire State was on its feet, eagerly caucusing. All eyes went to the spot in the centre of the hall, where Charles Francis Murphy stood in the centre of his braves.

As the hands of the clock dropped to nineteen minutes after midnight the clerk called: "The State of New York."

"Mr. Chairman," began Murphy, "the New York delegation has been polled. It stands eighty-one for Clark." He never finished that sentence for half an hour. In the meantime there was action of the most thrilling description. Michigan, West Virginia fighters plucked their standards and started a Clark parade. North Carolina, Nevada, Arizona, Colorado, Iowa, Kentucky, Missouri, Kansas, California, Illinois, New Mexico, Maryland, Washington, the District of Columbia, Massachusetts and Rhode Island joined the procession in the order named.

Babies Happy on Harbor Trip

"Mercy Ship" Opens Season

FIRST ON FLOATING HOSPITAL! HAPPY? YOU BET!

"Little Mothers" Out Bright and Early for Day on Floating Hospital.

The Floating Hospital, Boston's great boon to its tired, sick and suffering babies, started on its Summer trips down the harbor today from North End Park.

"Little mothers" came from all over the city, lugging in their arms bits of humanity, some of them almost as big as they themselves. First of these to cross the gang plank, smiling and laughing as she felt the cool breezes from the harbor, was little Amelia Girolone, holding her baby brother Tony proudly in her arms. Laughing gleefully at the prospects of a trip down the harbor, she was almost too impatient to pass for her photograph. At last, though, she was persuaded to stand still long enough to be snapped. Then, a happy "little mother," she darted off for the gangplank with baby Tony in her arms.

Then came a bevy of women and babies from the infants' Hospital. Two nurses were in charge and they were almost as happy as the mothers themselves, although they could not make the trip, returning to their work at the hospital.

G. Loring Briggs was in charge of the Floating Hospital. Dr. F. H. Locke is the physician on the ship.

Today was Isabel Kaffenburgh Day, the funds being supplied by Mrs. Kaffenburgh in memory of her husband. The trip tonight will be given by the Ladies' Auxiliary of the Independent Stereotypers and Electrotypers' Union.

A number of new faces are among the crew and staff this year. The steamer is in command of Capt. W. S. Brown, formerly of the Eastern Steamship Company. Another new addition will be Miss Martha H. Stark, who has been in Europe studying the latest methods of nursing.

SISTER OF GOV. DIX ILL AT BALTIMORE

BALTIMORE, June 29.—Mrs. G. M. Low, sister of Governor John A. Dix, who has been attending the Democratic National Convention, was taken seriously ill here. A physician was immediately called. He ordered her removal to the Union Protestant infirmary.

ACCEPTS PREMIER TANG'S RESIGNATION

LONDON, June 29.—President Yuan Shi Kai has accepted the resignation of Premier Tang Shao Yi, who is suffering from a nervous breakdown and contemplates a trip abroad, says a special dispatch from Pekin.

VALESKA SURATT A BANKRUPT: OWES MORE THAN $42,000

INDIANAPOLIS, June 29. — Valeska Suratt, the actress, has filed a petition in bankruptcy.

Miss Suratt is indebted to a Paris milliner for $425 for hats which she bought while abroad. Her indebtedness for photographs is $600, which she owes to a studio in New York. She owes $218.62 for flowers, according to her schedules, this amount being due to a New York florist. Miss Suratt gives her total liabilities as $42,479.69, and her total assets as $18,250.

BEQUEST FOR DARTMOUTH

A bequest of $1,000 to Dartmouth College, the interest to be used as a prize for the student doing the best work in descriptive geometry, was given by the late Robert Leland Read of Malden, who died on June 9. The will has been filed in the East Cambridge Probate Court and disposes of property amounting to $37,000.

WALSH OFFERS HIGH COST ISSUE

CONVENTION HALL, Baltimore, June 29.—Upon the motion of David I. Walsh, the Massachusetts representative on the Committee on Resolutions, that committee has incorporated in the platform a plank which charges that the high cost of living is due to the operations of the protective tariff.

Mr. Walsh's resolution is as follows:

The high cost of living is a serious problem in every American home. The Republican party in its platform attempts to escape from the responsibility for present conditions by denying that they are due to a protective tariff.

We take issue with them on this subject and charge that excessive prices result in a large measure from the high tariff laws enacted and maintained by the Republican party and from trusts and commercial conspiracies fostered and encouraged by such laws, and we assert that no substantial relief can be secured for the people until import duties on the necessaries of life are materially reduced and these criminal conspiracies broken up.

BOSTON WON'T GET BUNKER HILL GUN

Boston will not receive the famous Bunker Hill cannon that now reposes in the citadel of Quebec, a trophy of war, negotiations to have it sent back to Boston having proved fruitless.

The request came from Massachusetts historical and patriotic associations, who urged that the artillery arm captured by the British in the battle of Bunker Hill might very properly be returned to those hallowed grounds. This request caused a stir in Quebec and much opposition developed.

L STRIKERS' MASS MEETING TONIGHT

The Boston Elevated Carmen's Union will hold a mass meeting tonight at the Grand Opera House on Washington st. to discuss strike plans and receive reports. Only men with union cards will be admitted. Reports from all divisions will be received.

Evidence to be presented when the State Board of Conciliation and Arbitration meets on Tuesday to continue its investigation of the strike, will be discussed.

Property Worth $2,000,000 Left by William R. Porter

An estate of more than $2,000,000 was left by William R. Porter, the real estate man, according to the will just filed in the Suffolk Probate Court. The greater part of this was in real estate, $1,433,950 being in real property and $623,763.53 personal, a total of $2,057,713.35.

Among the personal property are 1,623 shares of United Shoe common and 100 preferred, 144 shares of American Bell Telephone and 700 shares of American Express, appraised at $150,000.

There are also 75 parcels of land in various sections of the city, and considerable real estate in Chelsea, Lawrence and Somerville.

QUINCY PLEADS NOT GUILTY IN MINE SUIT

NEW YORK, June 29.—Judge Hough having over-ruled the demurrers interposed by Julian Hawthorne, Josiah Quincy, Albert Freeman, John McKinnon and William J. Morton to indictments charging the use of mails in connection with the operation of a scheme to defraud investors in stock of silver and iron mines in the Cobalt district of Ontario, Canada, the defendants appeared before Judge Mayer and entered pleas of not guilty.

CARDINAL LEAVES FOR TRIP TO EUROPE

Cardinal O'Connell, accompanied by Mgr. Splaine, rector of the Cathedral, left today for New York to take passage for Europe on one of the Hamburg steamships. It is the Cardinal's intention to be present at the Eucharistic Congress in Vienna and afterwards to visit some of the old cathedrals of Germany, northern France and Belgium. The tour will extend through July and August.

WIDOW OF SUICIDE SULTAN'S DAUGHTER

SAN DIEGO, June 29.—Mrs. Frank B. Faber, the handsome Turkish widow of Dr. Frank Faber, who committed suicide here yesterday, was a daughter of Abdul Hamid, the deposed ruler of Turkey. The couple were married in Constantinople, when Dr. Faber was then dentist to the Turkish court.

HOLYOKE WOMAN IS DROWNED IN CANAL

HOLYOKE, June 29.—The body of Mrs. Mary Sheehan, fifty, a widow, was found in the second level canal here. She was last seen alive wandering near the canal. She had been in ill health and despondent, and is believed to have been a suicide. Several children are left.

SAILORS DESERT 18 STEAMSHIPS

NEW YORK, June 29.—Eighteen steamships due to sail from New York to Southern ports today were deserted by their firemen, sailors and other workmen, numbering several thousand, in obedience to a strike order by the National Transport Workers' Federation of America. Officials of the union declared 15,000 men would be out by night. The strike is expected to involve 130,000 men before the end of next week, and to tie up every coastwise steamship between Canada and Mexico. The men who walked out included sailors, firemen, oilers and water tenders.

The union ultimatum to the shipping companies was that unless the companies discontinued the open shop by July 1 a general strike would be called.

PAWTUCKET WOMAN BITTEN BY RAT

PAWTUCKET, June 29.—Mrs. Lydia Collier is at the hospital as a result of being bitten by a big rat while asleep in bed. Mrs. Collier said that the rat seized her near the wrist and lifted her arm up. She drove it away, but it returned the next night and bit her on the neck. She then attacked the rat with a stick which she had taken to bed, but it escaped.

$3,000 PAID FOR A 1798 HALF EAGLE

PHILADELPHIA, June 29.—The sum of $3,000 was paid by Henry C. Chapman for a 1798 half-eagle which was in the collection of George H. Earle, Jr., now being auctioned. This is said to be the highest price ever paid for a coin. For a silver dollar of 1770, the one coin of its sort known to exist outside the government collection, was sold for $2,000.

COMPOSER STUART IN BANKRUPTCY

LONDON, June 29.—Leslie Stuart, composer of "Florodora" and several other musical plays and songs, is in the bankruptcy court. Mr. Stuart said he had for some years been in the hands of a money lender, who received the bulk of his royalties. His income has amounted to between $20,000 and $25,000.

I offer a genuine guaranteed remedy for tobacco or snuff habit in 72 hours. It is mild, pleasant, strengthening. Guarantee more than invisible nerve cures and craving for cigarettes, cigars, pipe, chewing tobacco or snuff. One dose is 10 times as effective without apparent injury as the other nine it is guaranteed not to seriously disturb the system in health, causing such disorders as nervous dyspepsia, sleeplessness, gas, bashful, gnawing, or other uncomfortable sensation in stomach; constipation, headache, biliousness, weak eyes, dizziness, loss of vitality, red spots on skin, throat irritation, asthma, bronchitis, hoarseness, hay fever, sore throat, lung trouble, catarrh, melancholy, weakness, insomnia, impotency, loss of memory and will power, lack of energy, nervousness, lassitude, unfitness to perform the duties of life, cold hands and feet, lack of ambition, shortness of breath, heart trouble, pimples, blotches, lack of confidence, poor blood, liver trouble, kidney complaint, dizziness, sour stomach, headache, backache, lame back, lame joints, rheumatism, sciatica, neuralgia, sleeplessness, bad dreams, nervousness, specks before the eyes, twitching of the face and many other disorders. It is sensible and invigorating to attempt to cure yourself of tobacco using and make the nerves stop craving—don't do it. The guick, sure, scientific way to eliminate the poison from the system, strengthen the weakened, irritated membranes and nerves and genuinely overcome the craving for tobacco in any form. You can quit tobacco easy and be cured a thousand times better while being given to understand exactly what you are doing and why. Don't be deceived into thinking you can be cured by using some substitute. Don't make the mistake of using any treatment that makes you sick. Don't be humbugged by extravagant claims. Don't be buncoed into paying big money. Don't be discouraged if others have failed. Don't be afraid to write me your case fully. Don't be afraid to write me your case fully. Don't be afraid to write me your case fully

COUNT BRINGS FAMILY HERE

NEW YORK, June 29.—Count Szechenyi and the Countess Szechenyi, who was Miss Gladys Vanderbilt, with their two children, Cornelia and Alice, arrived here on the Mauretania. They will remain about two months and before visiting the mother of the countess, Mrs. Cornelius Vanderbilt, at Newport, will be the guests of Mrs. Harry Payne Whitney at Roslyn, L. I.

"We are very well and glad to see New York again," said the Countess. The children are well. This is the first time that the baby, Alice, has seen America. We shall stay one month at the Ieian and perhaps more."

The rosy cheeks of the children confirmed their mother's report of their health. The baby was very friendly with every passenger she could touch, and was especially sorry to say goodby to an elderly gentleman who played with her.

The Countess was attired in a blue tailored suede suit and wore a black and white hat.

Brand New Colors at Auteuil Race Meet

PARIS, June 29.—Individuality in the adaptation of subtle draperies, following graceful lines, is the keynote of Summer fashions, as exhibited in their full glory at the most elegant and most successful race meeting of the season, the Prix des Drags, at Auteuil.

Although the weather was beautiful, very few Americans went to Auteuil. The absence of Reginald Vanderbilt's smart coach in the line of drags was noted.

The chief charm of the new fashions is that there is no cut-and-dried rule. Each woman is free to wear the style that suits her most.

The great dressmaking establishments, however, seem to be agreed on two points. First, only soft material will be used, and, second, brilliant colors are the favorites.

Two new colors also are found. One, called prunelle, is a dull green. The other, called vert-jaune, is almost olive green. Both of these were much in evidence, although the latter, being more brilliant, appeared to be the favorite.

PROBE PENNSYLVANIA VOTE BUYING CHARGE

PITTSBURGH, June 29.—Judge Holt of Beaver county has issued hundreds of summonses to voters in the county requiring their presence in court next week when the judge will begin a personal investigation of the scandalous charges of boodling that followed the recent bitter primary fights.

SAVING BABIES FROM THE HEAT

By SYBIL WARNE.

BABY DECALOGUE.

Don't keep baby in the kitchen these warm days.

Don't let baby cry for cooled boiled water. Give it all it wants.

Don't put flannel shirts on baby in this weather.

Don't forget to wash baby once a day and sponge often its little face and body with cool water.

Don't put milk into nucleus bottles.

Don't use a feeding bottle with a tube on it.

Don't give baby coffee, syrups or solid food.

Don't over-clothe baby. One thin piece is enough. Baby will not take cold.

Don't keep handling baby. Put it down in some cool place by itself, under the watchful eye of someone.

Don't wean baby in warm weather.

These ten commandments for mothers are constantly upon the lips of municipal nurses in their daily visits to hundreds of homes in this city. None are so welcome in the homes of the poor as these nurses.

They warn careless mothers about overclothing the babies during the heated term. But it frequently requires many visits to bring about any radical change in this particular.

"Yes, we have to watch very carefully these little babies and see that the mothers give them nourishing food," said Miss Mildred Ashley to me as we came out of a large tenement in the North End.

"We try to impress upon the mother's mind that the baby must be washed daily," said Miss Ashley. "This is so important. Then we try to make them do this washing in the right way. Many of them are not thorough in their work. The nursing baby does not bother us very much. It is the bottle-fed baby on the top floor in the warm kitchen that consumes our energies.

"Then the simple matter of knowing how to handle a baby is important. Why, some of these babies get too much handling. The mother will take them out in the open air, which is very good. But while she is talking with her neighbors she holds the child for hours in her arms. No wonder baby cries in being handled so much.

"Then take the clothing. Why, some mothers just wrap a lot of cloth around their infants and it takes time and much persuasion to have them give it up. I have taken yards of wrapping from infants. It is so hard, too, to get the mothers to keep the baby out of the kitchen.

"Some will persist in keeping the baby in closed quarters, and when we see a mother putting her baby out on the fire escape in the shade we feel that we have done something for the fresh air of that child.

"With other of the nurses I have been obliged to tell mothers how to be careful and thorough in washing their infants. You will find a mother who, in caring for twins, for instance, will be likely often to wash them hurriedly.

"Every baby must have the same care. This advice often takes time. Some one in the block is ever too free with their wrong advice about the sick baby. In such cases we have to insist that unless the mother is careful and gets the proper milk formula from the physician the baby is likely to die.

"But in the generality of cases the mothers are glad to heed our instructions and ask for more."

Tells Romance of Regnault's 'Salome'

Daughter of Model Who Inspired Sculptor Reveals Story of Courtship and Death.

PARIS, June 29.—The mystery of the identity of the lovely Italian girl who posed as the model for Regnault's famous "Salome," which is soon to enrich American's collection of art treasures has been unexpectedly solved by the model's own daughter, Mlle. Renaudot.

The revelation comes in the shape of an article in L'Illustration, which has created all the more sensation, as Mlle. Renaudot is one of the most talked-about women here because of her achievements in science.

Mlle. Renaudot writes that Maria Latini was the name of the beautiful Sabine girl, born at Tivoli in 1885, who inspired the patriotic French painter. While she was living in Rome, in 1907, Maria was noticed in St. Peter's by the French sculptor, Renaudot, who was then studying in Rome with Regnault.

Renaudot and Maria were soon engaged, and it was during this time that he proposed for the friend of her future husband.

When the Franco-German war broke out both Renaudot and Regnault enlisted in the army, but immediately after the armistice in 1871 Renaudot returned to Rome, where the wedding was celebrated.

The couple lived happily in France until Christmas eve, 1906, the anniversary of their first meeting at St. Peter's, when Maria Latini, still lovely at forty-seven years, died suddenly.

The grief over her loss proved unbearable to the husband, who followed her to the grave within three weeks.

Let Boys Fight, Is Dr. Holmes' Advice

PROVIDENCE, June 29.—Boxing is one of the best things in the world for boys, says Dr. Arthur Holmes of the University of Pennsylvania. He believes that they should thus be allowed to work off the fighting instinct on one another.

Dr. Holmes was addressing the session of the American Association to Promote the Teaching of Speech to the Deaf, when he made known his views.

Speaking on "The Psychology of Childhood," he said it was instinctive in boys to throw stones.

"This is not viciousness," he declared. "It is the instinct that came down to him from his ancestors, who long, long ago had to throw stones to get their living. There are different ways of correcting this instinct in the boy."

TECHNOLOGY GIVEN LIBRARY BY VAIL

MISS COBURN, BRIDE TODAY OF JAMES S. STONE

Miss Dorothy Coburn, a debutante of two seasons ago and a prominent member of the Vincent Club, became the bride of James Sidney Stone of Beacon street today in the First Parish Church. Miss Coburn is the daughter of George M. Coburn of Jamaica Plain and Duxbury.

The wedding was of much interest to Boston society people.

Miss Coburn is an accomplished young person, a daring horsewoman, an expert at tennis and golf. She has taken part in several Vincent Club events, and at the annual show two seasons ago, "Reine Et Noir," danced as one of the Riviera girls. Miss Louise Coburn, who made her debut now seasons before Miss Dorothy Coburn, is her sister.

Mrs. Phoebe Hearst Succeeds Mrs. Howe

Honorary Member of Pioneer Workers of Clubwomen in Famous Boston Woman's Place.

SAN FRANCISCO, June 29.— Mrs. Phoebe A. Hearst, who was the first treasurer of the General Federation of Women's Clubs, has been elected to honorary membership in the society of Pioneer Workers to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Julia Ward Howe. The honor of this secondary membership was accorded to Mrs. Caroline S. Severance of Los Angeles.

Mrs. Philip Carpenter of New York and Mrs. Percy V. Pennybacker of Texas are the two leading and possibly the only candidates for president of the federation.

The Pioneer Workers have elected Mrs. Betty Brown of Massachusetts secretary.

TADEMA PAINTING BRINGS LOW PRICE

LONDON, June 29.—Special interest was taken at Christie's today in Sir Lawrence Alma Tadema's "A Roman Picture, 1867," owing to the artist's death last week. The price was low, however. At the Gambart collection sale nine years ago it realized $12,500. Beginning today at $2,500 dealers slowly pushed it up to $7,000; next

MRS. ALSOP IS HUSBAND-TIRED

Edward Brown Alsop, the veteran New York bridegroom, who wedded Effie Pope Hill, a Georgia beauty of twenty impressive years, is restless again, according to a dispatch from New York.

Young Mrs. Alsop left New York recently with her friend, Mrs. Tom Pierce of the Meadowbrook Hunting set, formerly of Boston and Topsfield. The hotel colony in Manhattan hears that the honeymoon and the bride have sailed for Europe.

Meanwhile Mr. Alsop, alone again in his old age, has turned to the companionship of his two sons, Harvard undergraduates. The sons were immensely pleased with their stepping stepmother at the time of the wedding. They returned to Harvard with one enthusiastic verdict: "She's a peach."

As struggle is renowned for its peaches, both outward and human variety, it was considered that Mr. Alsop's age had not dimmed his eye for beauty. Now, however, it is gossiped in New York that the Alsop sons are telling their father that his last marriage was an error in judgment.

PLATFORM HITS AT LIVING COST

BALTIMORE, June 29.—Tariff reform, the reduction of the high cost of living and better trust laws will be the leading features of the platform upon which the Democrats will make their campaign, it was announced today.

The platform declares for a single presidential term, with ineligibility for re-election; for the preferential presidential primary; for the direct election of Senators, and the income tax; and directs the National Committee to provide for selection at primaries of its members.

The platform, 5,000 words of it, is complete and ready for presentation to the Convention. The text has not yet been made public, but the platform

Reaffirms party's devotion to the principles of Democratic government as formulated by Jefferson.

Declares for a tariff for revenue only and denounces "The high Republican tariff as the principal cause of the unequal division of wealth."

Favors immediate downward revision of present duties, especially upon necessaries of life. Also favors gradual reduction so as not to interfere with or destroy legitimate industries.

Denounces President Taft for vetoing tariff bills of last Congress.

Condemns Republican party for failure to redeem its promises of 1908 for downward revision.

Attack G. O. P. Planks.

Takes issue with the Republican platform as to the high cost of living, contending it is largely due to high tariff laws.

Favors vigorous enforcement of the criminal features of anti-trust law.

Demands such additional legislation as may be necessary to crush private monopoly.

Favors prohibition of holding companies, interlocking directors, stock watering, etc.

Condemns Republican administration for "compromising with Standard Oil Company and Tobacco Trust."

Denounces as "usurpation" the efforts of Republicans to deprive States of their rights and to enlarge powers of the Federal Government. "There is," says the platform, "no twilight zone between the nation and the state in which exploiting interests can take refuge from both."

Favors the Income Tax.

Urges people to support proposed constitutional amendments pending in various States Legislatures, providing for an income tax and election of United States Senators by direct vote of the people.

As justification of the demands of the party for publicity of campaign expenditures, attention is directed "to the enormous expenditures of money in behalf of the President and his predecessor in the recent presidential contest."

Declares for presidential preference primaries.

Directs National Committee to provide for selection at primaries of members of National Committee.

Pledges party to enactment of law prohibiting campaign contributions by corporations and unreasonable campaign contributions by individuals.

Favors single presidential term and making President ineligible to re-election.

Felicitates Democratic Congress on its record, enumerating important achievements and pledges an adequate navy.

Denounces Republican administration on charge of extravagance and debauchery, returns to simplicity and economy befitting a democratic government.

Favors efficient supervision and rate regulation of railroads, express companies, telegraph and telephone lines and a valuation of these companies by the Interstate Commerce Commission, and also legislation against over issuance of stocks of these corporations.

In connection with the demand for such a revision of the banking laws as will give temporary relief in case of financial distress, there is a denunciation of the Aldrich bill prepared by the Monetary Commission. The present method of depositing government funds is condemned, and the party is pledged to enactment of a law for the deposit of such funds by competitive bidding in State and national banks without discrimination as to locality.

Recommends investigation of agricultural credit societies in Europe to ascertain whether a system of rural credits may be devised suitable to conditions in the United States.

Pledges party to enactment of legislation to prevent destruction of lower Mississippi valley by floods and the control of the Mississippi is declared to be a national rather than a State problem.

The maintenance of a navigable channel is also recommended.

MISS CAMPBELL, CAMBRIDGE GIRL IN PRINCESS RACE

By THE PRINCESS EDITOR.

Now for the finish!

The close of the AMERICAN'S great "Princess" Contest is at hand. There are only seven days more.

The Contest Editor will publish tomorrow in the Sunday AMERICAN the new list of candidates' standings, with the vote totals.

This list is the last one before the finish of the contest.

Do all that you can NOW. By vigorous effort you may boost your standing to the top of the list before the contest ends next Saturday.

Rest assured that your rival candidates are getting all the votes they probably can. The thing for YOU to do is to look out for YOUR share of the game.

Don't hold back votes until the last minute! Send them in as fast as you get them.

The Princess prize will be distributed without delay after the final vote count.

Miss Florence E. Campbell of No. 22 Bigelow street, Cambridge, is one of the candidates whose friends are working hard for her and piling up the votes.

Remember, girls, if you don't get the first prize there is a long list of 299 other delightful gifts for the winners.

Ocean trips to Bermuda, to Baltimore, to New York, to Portland and a host of other good things await the 300 winners.

"All up" for a whirlwind finish!

Every second from now until next Saturday should be made to produce a vote.

Rush them in!

The finish is near!

PRINCESS RACE IS NEAR FINISH

CHEER NEW YORK SHIFT TO CLARK

By JAMES J. MONTAGUE.

BALTIMORE, Md., June 29.—After taking nine fruitless ballots the Democratic national convention was the scene of a tremendous demonstration shortly after midnight, when, on the tenth ballot, Charles F. Murphy announced eighty-one New York State votes for Speaker Champ Clark.

Before he could complete his announcement the convention hall fairly rocked with the outbursts of the Clark adherents.

For the first time in the history of the New York delegation the unit rule has been broken and Champ Clark has broken it.

The New Yorkers themselves, the centre of all the tumultuous attention, stood passively on their chairs while a riot raged around them.

The decision to make Clark the choice of the New York delegation was reached after a series of conferences which have lasted since Monday.

It was only after the New Yorkers had been given ample assurance of the Speaker's strength by the fronsess of his supporters that the decision to declare for him was reached.

In the conferences were Senators O'Gorman, Samuel Untermeyer, Judge Parker, John Quinn, J. Sergeant Cram, Gov. Dix, William Church, Osborn and others high in the councils of the party in the city and State.

"Gum-Shoe Bill" Stone and Senator Reed, the two Missouri Senators, lead the cheering on the Missourian side. Somebody brought into the hall a beautiful American flag, which was taken to the New York delegation and surrounded by the delegates from all States that have been supporting the Speaker.

Four huge banners, one with an oil painting of the Speaker, were carried around the room. The Missourians held aloft a map with all the Clark States marked in red, yelling wildly as they waved it.

All delegates were up except Wilson's. They sat silent and silent, while Clark followers danced through the aisles about them.

The time of the demonstration was 26 minutes. Murphy, when order was restored, repeated his announcement: 81 for Clark. Underwood 1, Wilson 1. The crowd yelled. "The hoss' dawg has swallowed the Tammany tiger."

FIRST WOMEN'S LIFE SAVING CORPS IS IN SOUTH BOSTON

The first women's life-saving corps in the country is being organized by South Boston young women, and the captain of the first crew will be Miss Edith Willock. The corps expects to be in readiness next week to begin patrolling the bathing beaches around South Boston.

The organization is to have the same purpose as the regular men life-savers, and will be ready to render service in any emergency that may arise. Another aim of the women's corps will be to teach the women and children how to swim and take care of themselves in the water.

The new corps is to be made up exclusively of South Boston young women, many of whom have won medals and prizes for proficiency in swimming.

MONTH IN JAIL FOR A FLIRTING COUNT

NEW YORK, June 29.—Count Charles Edda of Sweden has learned that flirting is a dangerous pastime in America. He was sentenced to one month in jail in Yonkers police court for forcing his attentions upon young women. He was arrested on the street by Police Chief Daniel Wolf. He was fashionably dressed and carried a roll of money.

DEATHS

NATHANIEL DEVEREUX SILSBEE, eighty years old, is dead at his home in Mondnock street, Dorchester. He was graduated from Harvard in 1851. He was a member of the Salem Light Infantry and the Salem East India Marine Society.

GEORGE B. CLUETT, founder of Cluett, Peabody & Co., is dead at his home in Troy, N. Y. He established extensive charities, including hospitals and clubs for boys, and fitted out one of the ships in the Labrador mission work of Dr. Wilfrid Grenfell.

MRS. ANNA B. MORRELL, widow of James J. Morrell, died yesterday at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Gertrude Record, No. 18 Howland street, Malden. She traced her descent from five people who came to America in the Mayflower. She was born in Salem, Mo., in 1823.

HENRY R. STANFIELD, aged seventy, a former tenor, known as Signor Del Fanzis in European opera circles, is dead at the National Soldiers' Home at Hampton, Va. After graduating from Harvard he enlisted in the Forty-fourth Massachusetts Regiment.

16 INDICTMENTS RETURNED BY THE U. S. GRAND JURY

Ten indictments out of sixteen returned by the Federal Grand Jury were secret. Other indictments were: Captain Raphael Lobes of the White Star liner Cretic was indicted on the charge of failure to provide proper sleeping apartments in the steerage; Roscoe B. Jewett, embezzlement of registered mail matter while employed in the postoffice; Charles E. Smith of Dorchester, for using the mails in a scheme to defraud, it being alleged that he sold partnerships in worthless business plans.

Arthur Labrie was indicted on the charge of breaking and entering the Hebronville postoffice. A "no bill" pas reported in the case of Edward Fogarty, on the same charge.

John Byrne was indicted on the charge of having deposited nonmailable matter in a letter box, it being alleged that he sent improper letters to a nurse in the employ of Frederick Law Olmstead, the landscape gardener of Boston.

Charles Johnson was arrested for an alleged violation of the meat inspection law by shipping meat bearing illegal tags.

"POPULIST," SAYS BELMONT, REPLYING TO BRYAN'S ATTACK

BALTIMORE, June 29.—"Though whatever I may say in reply to Mr. Bryan's attack upon me might create sympathy for rather than rebuke him, I beg to remind him that I was a Democrat when he was a Populist," said August Belmont.

"My father before me and I never failed to support the nominee of the Democratic party. He and I contributed generously to funds to meet legitimate expenses of the campaign. I even voted for Bryan myself the three times he ran for the presidency, not that I believed in the Populistic doctrines he expounded, but because he was the regular nominee of the party.

"Mr. Bryan's latest attack on me will, in my judgment, recoil upon himself. I will put no public reply against his Populistic theories at any time. I let the people determine which is the better Democrat."

BAY STATE 33 CLARK'S TO END

By JAMES E. DONOGHUE.

BALTIMORE, June 29.—Tired after their third all-night session, thirty-three of Massachusetts' thirty-six delegates are determined to stick to Champ Clark to the end. This decision was reached at a conference held by the delegation just prior to adjournment.

The launch of the Foss boom has been delayed, in fact the launching may never take place. Mayor Fitzgerald is doing yeoman work for Clark. At a time when some delegates wished to go over to Wilson it was the Mayor who stayed the bolt and kept the delegation intact. Professor Droppers will stick to Wilson to the end.

"Tom" Thacher and Richard Olney, 2d, will stick to Underwood. Olney and Thacher attempted, at 2 o'clock to have the delegates switch to Underwood, but without success. In the present temper of the delegation the Massachusetts men will be the last to quit Clark.

Ex-Congressman Keliher sat through the night with the New York delegation. New York adjoins the Massachusetts continent. The ex-Congressman was disappointed with the steadfastness of New York and Massachusetts sticking to Clark. In the balloting, Congressman Curley, who led Speaker Clark's primary battles in New England, sat for a time with the Massachusetts delegates and warmly commended their stand.

Leaving the convention hall at 3:30 a. m., many of the Massachusetts men found themselves without homes. Their hotel privileges expired at 6 o'clock last evening, and they expected by that time to be on the way home.

Some of them walked the streets preparatory to looking up their quarters as soon as the town awoke. "Jerry" McNamara led a contingent towards Boston. Other delegates will go today whether a nomination is reached or not. Alternates will be left on the job.

Conferences of leaders will be held at noon in the hope of breaking the deadlock and allowing delegates to get away for their homes by Sunday.

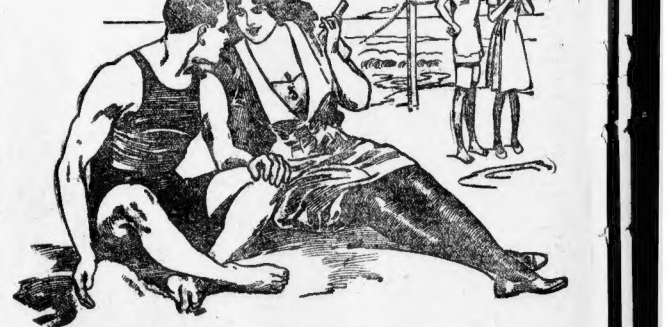
LET US MAKE YOU FAT

50-Cent Box Free!

We Will Prove at Our Own Expense That It Is No Longer Necessary to Be Thin, Scrawny and Undeveloped.

WE INVITE EVERY THIN MAN and WOMAN HERE

Every Reader of the Boston American Who Is Run Down, Nervous or Underweight, to Get Fat at Our Expense.



"Gee! Look at that pair of skinny scarecrows! Why don't they try Sargol?"

This is a generous offer to every thin man or woman reader in Boston and vicinity. We positively guarantee to increase your weight to your own satisfaction or no pay. Think this over—think what it means. At our own risk we offer to put 10, 15, yes, 20 pounds of good, solid "stay there" flesh on your bones, to fill out hollows in cheeks, neck or bust, to get rid of that "peaked" look, to rejuvenate and revitalize your whole body until it fairly tingles with vibrant energy; to do this without drastic diet, "tonics," severe physical culture, "drugging," detention from business or any irksome restrictions—if we fail it costs you nothing.

We particularly wish to hear from the excessively thin, those who know the humiliation and embarrassment which only skinny people have to suffer in social life. We want to send a free 50-cent package of our new discovery to the people who are called "stacks" and "bean poles." Many women, whose clothes never look "anyhow," no matter how expensively dressed, to the skinny men who fail to gain social or business recognition on account of their cadaverous appearance. We care not whether you have been thin from birth, whether you have lost flesh through sickness, how gaunt, flesh builders you have experimented with, or how little you weigh—if you are under weight we cannot put pounds and pounds of healthy flesh on you, we want to know it. Write today.

Sargol Is a Scientific Discovery.

Sargol is a scientific discovery of great merit, which has a record of success in producing healthful increase in weight that is almost beyond belief. In fact, so astonishing are the results that Sargol has been investigated by the Bureau of Chemistry, Washington, D. C., and the Government has issued a bulletin regarding the constituents of Sargol. Sargol is not a patent medicine, but a scientific preparation of pure, organic, assimilative iron, in which form it is recognized by the medical profession as the greatest of all blood builders and strength creators. Sargol is also a great nerve tonic and invigorator, and the combination of these two properties in Sargol is what makes it so remarkable in building up the weight of thin people. Sargol is not a fat producer, but it is a flesh builder, and it is the only flesh builder which has been put up in condensed tablet form. Sargol is also a great digestive tonic, and it is the digestive tract into which Sargol puts its flesh building elements

CLARK AWAITS REAL RESULTS

WASHINGTON, June 29.—Champ Clark, hero of the hour here and in Baltimore, spent the day in the Speaker's room at the Capitol.

"I am not going to talk on the subject of the Baltimore convention until I get from it definite results," he said.

The Speaker had with him at the Capitol Mrs. Clark and Miss Anne Bennett Plenge, niece of Mrs. Clark. He and his friends were kept informed by long-distance telephone and press dispatches which came to him in showers and sheaves on all the details of the convention.

The Speaker is the only man in Washington who can be enthusiastic and quiet at the same time.

He impressed Miss Pitzer into the service as stenographer and typewriter, and she appeared to be a pretty hard-worked young woman.

His brother candidate, Oscar Underwood, of Alabama, came in occasionally when there would be a "Hello, Oscar," "Hello, Mr. Speaker," and these wise gentlemen would look at each other, but they said very little.

CONVENTION SIDELIGHTS

BALTIMORE, June 29.—One of the two votes given by the Maine delegation today for Underwood of Alabama was cast by Governor Plaisted of the Pine Tree State.

"My father," said the executive, "told me several years before he died that he would live to see a Southern Democrat once more elected President. His principal reason for this was that, in his opinion, until a Southerner should be elected President the wounds of the Civil War would not be healed nor the victory of Appomattox be complete."

The father of the Maine executive was himself Governor of that State.

Old convention-goers declare that this is the most whiskerless convention that ever they have seen. It is remarked that with one or two notable exceptions, the men who are at the forefront of affairs here are bare of face. This is true of the leading candidates as well as the men who have appeared upon the platform to make speeches or preside over the convention.

Senator Kern, of Indiana, is the only one of the entire list of notables whose face is adorned with more than a mustache. The Indiana statesman sports a carefully trimmed growth of chin whiskers that are turning gray.

Ex-Senator Marion Butler, of South Carolina, who was swept into Congress on the Populist wave that landed William A. Peffer into the seat that had been occupied for so many years by John J. Ingalls, strolled through the crowded lobby of the Belvedere. While he still wears a full set of cork-back whiskers, he has trained his lusuite growth down to the Van Dyck shape.

Chas. A. Spreckels, president of the Federal Sugar Refining Company, chief rival of the Sugar Trust, met William Jennings Bryan for the first time. He called on the Nebraskan while an AMERICAN reporter was attempting to interview him.

"It's a curious coincidence," Mr. Spreckles told Mr. Bryan, "that I should be introduced to you by the man (referring to the reporter) who made the first announcement of my quitting the Republican party, in which I was born and reared. This occurred several months ago. I was interviewed by the reporter and declared my apostacy from the faith of my fathers in front of the bank of J. P. Morgan & Co., the very heart of Wall Street, not far from which my own offices are located."

Mr. Spreckels is talking freely with the Democratic leaders, and, like all new converts, is enthusiastic over the prospects of the party this year. Although one of the biggest manufacturers in the country, he is a stanch advocate of tariff reform, and believes the tariff will be the leading issue of the campaign.

Western delegates, and particularly the Champ Clark contingent from Missouri, are anxious for Charles F. Murphy and the other Tammany chiefs now here to give a "party" before the crowds depart from Baltimore. When this suggestion was made to Thomas F. Smith, secretary of Tammany, by Senator Stone and ex-Governor Francis of Missouri, Smith quickly endorsed it, and said he would immediately lay the matter before Mr. Murphy, Judge Daniel P. Cohalan, Delancey Nicholl, J. Sergeant Cram, and other leading Tammany lights.

No date for the "party" has been set; but it promises to be one of the most notable features of the convention week.

In spite of the arraignment of the New Yorkers by Bryan, Democratic leaders from the South and West are expressing a desire to meet and mingle freely with the Tammany chieftains, to the end that there may be a better understanding between them.

"Out my way," said W. F. Johnson, a Clark manager from Booneville, Mo., to Secretary Smith, "we had been led to believe that you Tammanyites had hoofs and horns, and that you went about seeking whom you might devour. I have been watching your bunch very closely since I have been here, and I now feel as safe when I am with you fellows as when I am with my own fellows from Missouri."

Cornell and Columbia Favorites In Big Regatta

Leland Stanford Is "Dark Horse" of the Six Crews

Betting Favors Cornell, but Experts Look for a Close Race Today.

POUGHKEEPSIE, N. Y., June 29.—Ideal weather conditions for the big intercollegiate regatta over the classic Hudson River course here this afternoon greeted the oarsmen this morning. Hardly a breeze rippled the surface of the Hudson during the early hours and the sky was cloudless.

All conditions pointed to one of the greatest races in the history of the course. Cornell still ruled a hot favorite in the betting, but the backers of the big red crew coached by Courtney were asking odds of 5 to 4 against the field, while Columbia and Syracuse continued to gain in favor as the hour of the race approached.

Those who had studied the work of the crews during the weeks of preparation predicted today that the big varsity race would be one of the closest and most exciting ever fought on the Hudson. Coach Rice's crew was pronounced the best that had represented Columbia since their victorious eight of 1895 and the followers of the blue and white appeared confident of victory.

Ten Eyck Crew Third Choice.

Thousands of graduates and alumni here to celebrate backed the blue and white freely, giving 2 to 1 against Cornell, while the champions offered the same odds that their eight would beat Syracuse.

Ten Eyck's crew was the third choice in the betting, although it was generally conceded to have every bit as good a chance against Cornell and Columbia. It was the strongest eight that Ten Eyck had moulded together in years, superior on preliminary form even to the victorious crew of 1908.

Of the six crews entered in the big varsity race, the one credited with the best chance of victory, but having a host of well wishers was that of the Leland Stanford University, whose sturdy athletes travelled thousand of miles to compete.

Late Shift in Wisconsin Boat.

The Stanford crew had to make the race in a borrowed boat, their own having been broken in the transportation. They encountered all sorts of difficulties in preparing for the race, but in spite of all handicaps they were there to finish among the first three.

R. L. Cuff, No. 2 in he Wisconsin varsity eight, was taken ill last night, and, and to relate, had to be removed to the hospital. Coach Vail decided to use either Gibson or Wood in his place.

Fully 40,000 people early today were ready to attend this regatta. The city was filled to its capacity with visitors over night, while thousands of trains also brought in carloads of spectators from distant points.

On the river hundreds of big yachts aflame with colors of the various varsities were strung along the four-mile course while smaller craft darted in and out among them. For three miles above and a mile below the bridge flag-decked vessels lay at anchor.

Coach Courtney had little to say regarding the chances of his crew early today. He expressed the opinion that his eight was as close to perfection as months of training could make it.

"The men are fit and ready," said the veteran coach, "and the crew that beats Cornell will be entitled to all the glory of a great victory."

Jim Rice was sanguine over his Columbia boys' chances. "The best crew the Blue and White ever boasted," is the way the Blue and White coach spoke of his men. "They are primed to the minute and will give a good account of themselves."

Jim Ten Eyck, the Syracuse coach, would say nothing regarding his crew except that all the men were in good condition.

The freshman race was believed to be an open one, but Columbia and Syracuse both loomed up strong.

The four-oared varsity crews were evenly matched in form and a great race was expected here with honors between Cornell, Columbia and Syracuse.

The crew betting was largely between Columbia and Syracuse backers. Even money was offered that Columbia would beat Syracuse and Cornell offered the same odds to the followers of Ten Eyck's crew.

One bet of six hundred to five was made by a Cornell man that the Red and White crew would beat the Syracuse, and odds of 8 to 5 were given that Cornell would sweep the river.

Again Syracuse went begging, but it was said that the Orange crew's backers were holding out for odds and would unload a pile of money at the proper moment.

Drawing for Place.

The first race on the program, the varsity four-oared event was scheduled to start at 3:15. The distance of the course is two miles in length, and the winner takes the Stewards cup, held by Columbia.

The big event, the varsity eight-oared race, distance four miles, was scheduled to begin at 5:15. The victors of this event carry off the varsity challenge cup held by Cornell.

The drawings for the races were as follows:

Varsity eights, 5:15 p. m.—No. 1, Wisconsin; No. 2, Pennsylvania; No. 3, Syracuse; No. 4, Columbia; No. 5, Cornell; No. 6, Stanford.

Varsity fours, 3:15 p. m.—No. 1, Columbia; No. 2, Syracuse; No. 3, Cornell; No. 4, Pennsylvania.

Freshman Eights, 4 p. m.—No. 1, Pennsylvania; No. 2, Columbia; No. 3, Wisconsin; No. 4, Cornell; No. 5, Syracuse.

Yankees in a Panic.

Stump lost his nerve about this time and threw Speaker's drive on a bound to the plate, Veries scoring and "Spoke" racing on to second. Lewis drove one through the second baseman's legs, scoring Speaker, and Lewis himself scored on Stahl's single. Stump made still another error when he dropped Wagner's high fly to centre, but it did not count, for Carrigan flied out to Maloney.

The Sox made two more runs in the fourth on four singles by Wagner, Carrigan, Yerkes and Speaker, "Heinie" and Bill doing the scoring. Carrigan added another run in the eighth, when he slugged and after going to second on Bedient's sacrifice, and to third on Hooper's out, scored on Yerkes' safe drive.

Collins showed signs of going to pieces in the fifth when the Yankees, aided by Sterrett's long homerun drive, scored three runs, and Stahl relieved him after two outs were made in the ninth.

Stahl took a remarkable chance in this inning by substituting Bedient, who had been driven from the box in the first game, and the youngster showed his rare ability in handling knives from making a hit during the rest of the game.

Maloney, the New England League pitcher, played a marvelous game in centrefield for the New Yorkers, and Heinie Wagner made a series of spectacular plays for the Red Sox.

RED SOX AFTER TWO MORE GAMES

collective speed and ingenuity of "Heinie" Wagner and Bill Carrigan, won the game that Ford pitched in the first inning. Speaker hit a home run that scored Steve Yerkes ahead of him. The margin did not last long, for the Yankees uncovered four hits off Bedient and were offering in the third inning, and scored three runs, which, added to one they had laid away in the second, gave them a two runs lead.

Notwithstanding some loose fielding, the Yankees kept ahead cheerily by the aid of Russell Ford's pitching. Bedient went to the bench and Chester Hall relieved him, choking off the New York hitting streak, but with Ford working his hardest and nobody daring to risk hitting but Speaker, there was no hope for Boston until the seventh inning, when "Spoke" sent a double smashing to the left field score board and he hurried across the plate when Lewis singled.

Wolverton started the series of blunders that gave the Sox the second game. He threw a batsman from Yerkes' bat low to first. Sterrett lost track of the ball, and when Collins, on 400 coaching line, started to right field, he chased off in that direction. The ball meanwhile rebound amongst the feet of the Red Sox players. Warhop and Stump saw it there, but Yerkes was on third base when they recovered it.

RILEY'S COLUMN

HARRY WOLVERTON will deliver up his Yankees to the sacrifice twice more today, hoping that the Red Sox will not dare a hoodoo by walking off with thirteen straight victories. Boston is a cold old town for the ex-Bostonian and the Sox had made it eleven straight from the New Yorkers when they resumed business in a double-header today.

WOLVERTON'S baseball players looked as demoralized at one time yesterday that nobody would have blamed them if they had walked off the field in disgust. Wolverton was so sore on Hartzell for letting "Heinie" Wagner and Bill Carrigan pull the first game out of the fire with two runs in the eighth inning that he held down third base himself in the second struggle. He made the first error himself in the opening inning, and Second Baseman Stump followed with three more, while nearly everybody in a Kiltie uniform stood in fear and trembling.

TRIS SPEAKER reached the century mark hitting in the first game, and it was he and Wagner and Carrigan who brought home the goods, for Russell Ford would have broken the Yankees' losing streak but for their work. "Spoke" drove a tantalizing home run to the center field bleachers in the first inning of the opening contest, scoring Yerkes ahead of him. He doubled in the fifth and hit another two-bagger in the seventh, giving the Red Sox their first ray of hope when he scored on "Duffy" Lewis' single, making the score 4 to 3 against us.

THE season is not yet half over, so that it is possible—although rather improbable—that Speaker will beat Cobb's record of 248 and Jackson's 233 hits made last year. Unless barred by accident, he will easily beat his own record of 107 hits made last season, when he hit for 327.

* * *

"BUCK" O'Brien will do business for the Red Sox in one of today's games and Joe Wood is slated for the second, although Stahl may decide to give Joe two more days rest and take a chance with Jim Pape or Cicotte, holding Joe in reserve in case the Yankees look dangerous. If Wood works he will probably have an ovation similar to the one the "fans" gave Speaker yesterday. Fifteen thousand "fans" cheered Speaker for several moments and everybody was on his feet with a roar when Tris replied to those few kind words with his home run drive.

"HUB" PERDUE, the centre of the latest Pilgrim disturbance, was still in Boston today, neither rejoining his teammates in New York or returning to his farm at Gallatin, Tenn. "Hub" said that he was waiting for his pay check and that he would go home when it arrived. Thus, the Pilgrim star may quit the game of baseball in which he had a chance to become one of the best pitchers of them all.

"I DON'T care who says I have been only fined and not suspended," said "Hub," in his broadest Gallatin. "I'm goin home to my farm. I won't pitch major league baseball for less salary than I can get in the minors. I can make $50 a month more in the Southern League than I can here.

* * *

"I TELL you I was working my head off, and I wasn't in condition to pitch against Brooklyn. But they put me in, and when Brooklyn hit 'em out, they let Brown work. I had an argument, and I suppose I did call the manager a 'fathead,' and he told me to go home. That's where I'm going. I did hear something about a fine later, but I am not going to pitch any more baseball unless I have more salary than I have been getting from the Boston Nationals."

* * *

THE Southern League ordinarily pays good men about $1,500 to $1,800 a year, so from "Hub's" remark it might be guessed that the Pilgrims paid their star pitcher but $1,500, or thereabouts.

PILGRIMS FACE RUBE MARQUARD

NEW YORK, June 29.—Rube Marquard will try his best to make it eighteen straight victories when he faces the Pilgrims this afternoon. Manager Kling will send his choice left-hander Tyler to the mound, to try and cop off a win from the Giants and break the run of victories set up by McGraw's portsider.

The Pilgrims looked very weak in yesterday's double-header.

More than 10,000 assembled in the Stadium out of curiosity to see Boston suffer.

Boston hit Matty often enough in the first game to get a lot of runs, but when a runner got on the sacks he moved with the speed and grace of a coal truck.

According to Boston's formula it requires four hits to make a run. One to get on, another to send the man to second, a third safe tap to advance him to third, and still another to drive him home.

The Bostons are not trying to steal bases this season, the weather is too warm. The only speed they showed today was hurrying to the icewater cooler after each inning.

One of the delightful features of the outlines was to see Matty steal home in the fourth inning of the first game. Big Six was never built for a track racer, but his movements were fast compared with the activity of the Pilgrims.

New York got thirty-three hits out of the batting practice and Manager McGraw sent in almost every player he had for a work out. The Giants stole thirteen bases in the two games, and they could probably have stolen the Boston hotel and they never would have known it.

Johnny Kling used to be a "bear" at inside ball when he was with the Cubs, but all of the inside ball connected with the Boston Club is still secreted inside of his noodle.

Mathewson was in sorry straits for a while in the fourth, Boston hitting him for five singles, but out of the assortment of bangs they netted but two runs.

Thus was the hitting terror of the Pilgrims, who batted for four hits, one a double. His double in the sixth followed by two outs, gave the Bostons their third run.

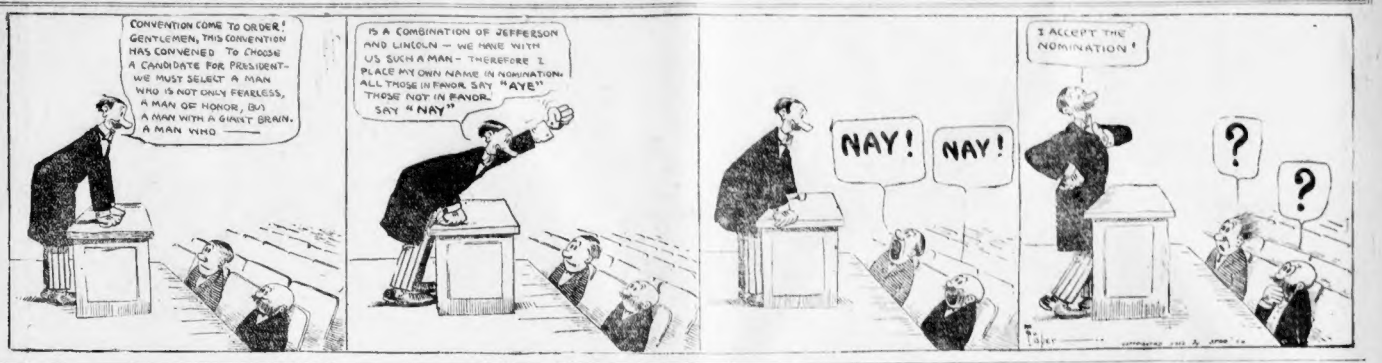
AMERICAN STARS FOR OLYMPIC GAMES ARRIVE AT STOCKHOLM

Mutt Tries to Steal His Own Convention — By "Bud" Fisher



200 STARS IN EVERETT MEET

Two hundred of the best athletes in New England compete in the different events at the Everett Catholic Club field day, which is held at the Everett High School athletic field today.

One of the big events of the day is the 440-yard run. With such stars as Irving Hoke, the colored flyer from the Boston English High School; Gus Bowser, the old South Boston A. C. star, and W. L. Powell entered, the race is sure to develop into an exciting affair.

George P. Klimball, the junior champion miler of the United States, is entered in the mile run and will possibly win this event. Dan Coakley, the Powder Point schoolboy, is sure to make the other runners step fast in the 100-yard dash.

In the field events many stars will compete. J. Lawler is entered in the shot put; Smith, the Dartmouth man, in the broad jump, and J. L. McLaughlin in the running high step and jump.

The games will start promptly at 2:30 p. m. A fine feature of the day will be a ball game between the Everett Catholic Club and the Chelsea Knights of Columbus.

Middleboro to Have Big Sport Holiday

MIDDLEBORO, June 29.—The sporting end of the July 4 celebration here will be one of the chief events of the day, and already the committee is assured of a good entry list in every number of the program. The sports are to be in charge of Ralph Mendell, Stearns Cushing and A. H. Dorman, and they are ready to receive entries now.

Immediately after the morning and trade procession in the morning the sports will start with running races of half-mile, mile and two miles, hurdles, relay, sack and potato races, tug-of-war between a local team and a strong team from Halifax.

There will be two baseball games between the Middleboro Athletics and the Buchanans of Neponset in the morning and afternoon. Band concerts will be in order throughout the day and in the evening there will be fireworks.

PALZER DEFEATS WELLS IN THREE FAST ROUNDS

BRITISH CHAMPION KNOCKED OUT

NEW YORK, June 29.—Al Palzer knocked out Bombardier Wells, the heavyweight champion of England, in the third round of a scheduled 10-round bout at Madison Square Garden.

Wells' seconds threw up the sponge as the Britisher dropped from the effect of a deadly right body blow and lay dazed in the ring.

Palzer, who had been knocked down by the Britisher in the opening round, sent Wells to the floor toward the end of the second session, and knocked him down twice in the third round.

Wells was no sooner up the second time than Palzer landed a hard right below the heart. Wells sank to the floor crumpled in a heap, and lay there helpless while his seconds threw the sponge into the ring, saving Referee Jon the trouble of counting the man out.

It was a rapid and exciting fight from the start, but Palzer's weight began to tell on the Englishman toward the end of the opening round.

Palzer Knocked Down.

Wells, looking supremely confident, opened with a light left to the face and Palzer sent left and right to the head. Wells then did some clever side-stepping and made Palzer miss. Then Wells sent left and right to the head, cutting Palzer's lip with a smash on the mouth. Wells sent a left and right hook to the jaw and Palzer went down for a count of six seconds.

Palzer, when he got up, began boring out. Wells shook him off, sending lefts and rights to the face and ducking under cuffs from a wild right swing. Then Wells sent two straight lefts to the face, but Palzer was playing wildly for the body at the bell. This was Wells' round.

Wells landed left and right to the head and Palzer landed both hands heavily on the body. Wells sent the right to body and head, but Palzer rushed his right to the head. Wells ducked from a right swing and sent a left to the face and also two right uppercuts on the body. He dashed away from Palzer and reached the head with right and left hooks.

Wells Goes to Mat.

Palzer then stepped in and with a right uppercut under the chin and a left hook to the jaw, sent Wells down for a count of seven seconds. Both men were sparring at the bell which rang several seconds later. This also was Wells' round.

In the third Palzer led a light left to the face and a right hook to the head. Wells swung right to the face and they exchanged lefts on the head. Palzer planted two right uppercuts on the chest and under the chin and Wells got a straight left to the face. Palzer then uppercut with his right and sent Wells down for the count.

When he got up at the count of nine Wells sent a right uppercut and rushed his left to the face. Palzer with a right uppercut out of a clinch, sent Wells down again for another count of nine.

Wells was very weak when he regained his feet and Palzer rushed him, landing a hard right under the heart. Wells crumpled up and sank to the floor without another blow and was lying helpless in the middle of the ring when his seconds threw in the sponge and stopped the fight in his corner. The time of the fight round was 2:41.

Cyclists Get Going at Revere Cycle Track

For the first time this season the merry whirr of the motors will be heard tonight at the Revere cycle track when an all star card of racing will be given.

This evening James F. Moran (motor Wiley and Percy Lawrence, the consistants in the twenty-five-mile motor paced race, arrived from Newark and they are all in first class shape.

In company with paced riders came Jonny Bedell of New York, who will make an effort to lower the colors of Carlo Monnet, the Italian sprint champion.

The class B professionals will meet in an Australian pursuit race. There will be two short sprint heats with two men to qualify and the four qualifiers will be lined up semi-distances apart around the track.

As fast as a man is overlapped he will retire and the winner will be the last man in action on the track.

NEW YORK STARS IN BIG REGATTA

The committee in charge of the big Fourth of July regatta on the Charles will hold a meeting at the Union Boat Club on next Monday evening. Final preparations will then be made for the big classic.

An intense amount of interest is being displayed in this year's regatta and a record number of entries are expected by the committee in charge. A number of New York stars will enter sculls and the competition is sure to be keen.

The full list of events are as follows: Single scull shell senior, single scull shells intermediate, single scull shells novice, double scull shells intermediate, double scull shells senior, double scull shells junior, four-oared shells senior, four-oared shells intermediate, four-oared shells junior, quadruple race, eight-oared shells senior, eight-oared shells intermediate, eight-oared shells junior and war races.

Four entries have already been received from New York. The Ravenswood Club is going to send a quadruple four and should make things interesting for the Union Boat Club.

Schoolboys in Golf Tourney at Woodland

The Greater Boston Interscholastic Golf Tournament will be held over the links of the Woodland Golf Club July 1, 2 and 3.

President A. C. Burnett of the Woodland Club has granted the boys permission to use the links. Owing to the big tournament on July 4, the boys will not be allowed to use the regular tees, but will use the dirt tees instead.

The boys went over the course yesterday and recorded many fifty scores. Ray Ordnet, young brother of Francis Ouimet, former champion, was among those who competed yesterday and he is scheduled in the Heath Grammar school of Brookline and is anxious to test his ability against the schoolboys.

BOSTON AND WORCESTER SCHOOL CREWS BATTLE

WORCESTER, June 29.—The annual eight oared race between the Boston schools' crew and the crack crew of the Worcester English High is raced on Lake Quinsigamond this afternoon.

Conditions are perfect for the race and it is expected that the greatest battle ever between schools' crews will be fought.

The Boston schoolboy oarsmen arrived in the city this morning and went directly to the Y. M. C. A. boathouse. The boys rigged their shell and took several trial spins on the smooth lake waters.

The Worcester schoolboy followers considered the local boys the favorites, but after looking over the mighty Boston boys it was thought that things were even.

The average weight of the Boston crews is 165 pounds and this is exceptionally heavy for a schoolboy eight. Albert Yale and Ernest Soucy of Boston Latin, Westley Coleman of Rindge, captain of the shell and McDonald of Rindge, are all big men.

The weight of these boys is a big factor as they furnish a strong sweeping stroke that sends the shell through the water at a good clip.

The Worcester crew is confident of winning. Seventy-five Springfield High crew enthusiasts Worcester by about eight lengths, but the locals have worked hard since that defeat and have improved greatly.

Worcester's rowing order is: Stroke, Gilman; No. 7, Morse; No. 6, Captain Longley; No. 5, Jonson; No. 4, Hooker, No. 3, Reid; No. 2, Woodward; bow, Somers; coxwain, Rodier.

Canadian Olympic Team Reinstates Negro

LONDON, June 29.—J. A. Howard, the negro member of the Canadian Olympic team, the announcement of whose dismissal on the charge of insubordination was made by the team's coach, W. Knox, on Wednesday, has been officially reinstated.

J. D. Nerrick, secretary of the Canadian committee, says that Howard became such a nuisance to the team that it was decided to send him back.

GREAT AMERICAN OLYMPIC TEAM NOW AT STOCKHOLM

STOCKHOLM, Sweden, June 29.—The great athletic team that ever competed in an Olympic meet.

The Swedish people are very friendly toward American athletes because they have done more than their part in boosting attendance in this country. American coaches have been employed by the Swedish government for the past year and have been carefully coaching Swedish athletes for the Olympics.

The Americans will make their headquarters on the Finland though they will do most of their practicing at one of the local tracks. The Finland has been fitted up in good style and the athletes are taken care of in princely style. If the men put up at local hotels, they would not be able to get the kind of food that they have been used to and the coaches would not be able to keep in touch with the men as well as they can when they are all aboard the Finland.

Yachts Start Today In Race for Gold Cup

NEWPORT, R. I., June 29.—About half a score of yachts assembled here for the race for the Ilara gold cup under the auspices of the Eastern Yacht Club. The start was made at 10:45 a. m. points of Plymouth Lightsats and the orders are expected to finish at Marblehead Rock early Sunday morning.

The entries for the Ilara gold cup, offered last year by the commodore of the Ilara, include the following schooners with their owners:

Elmo, Frederick Fenton, Ch.; Enchantress, William E. Iselin of New York; Isolde, E. Walter Cook of Philadelphia; Mistral, Henry A. Morse of Boston; Primrose, Demarest Lloyd of Boston; Shamrock IV, Alfred Dominick of Boston.

There are two supplementary races in connection with the Clark cup contest, the first for second division schooners, including the Mistral, the Primrose and the Shamrock IV, and the Vagrant, owned by Harold S. Vanderbilt of New York, and the second for sloops, for which there are entered the Dorie, Commodore E. T. Paine, 2d, of Boston; the Dorie, S. Reed Ashburn of Boston, the Atlanta II, Wetmore and Savage of Boston.

The second division schooners will sail for a cup offered by Commodore Cunningham of Washington. R. Thomas, while the sloops will sail for an executive's trophy contributed by Capt. Morse of the Muriel.

Another Free Ticket for Young Ball Fans

The AMERICAN is trying to do its part in making the Summer vacation a happy one for the youthful baseball "fans" of New England. With every copy of tomorrow's Sunday AMERICAN there will be printed a free ticket to any of the games of the Greater Boston League, except those played on a Saturday or holiday. The ticket is good admission by any boy or girl under sixteen years of age.

The teams of the Greater Boston League have all been playing high class baseball. In fact, some of the games are almost as good as those being played in the big leagues. Of course, the players are not as good as the big leaguers, but the teams are evenly matched and as a result each game is fought out to the last ditch.

Get busy now and order your Sunday AMERICAN in advance so that you will be sure to get one of these free tickets for the games of the Greater Boston League.

BROWN STAR TO TEACH.

PROVIDENCE, June 29.—Kenneth Nash, the Brown baseball star, who captained this year's team to victory, has been appointed instructor in science and history at the North Helgits School, and will take up the duties of that position at the close of the American League baseball season.

CARPENTER PUT OUT.

RACINE, Wis., June 29.—Showing more steam and speed than he has ever before, Young Mahoney of Racine, middleweight, knocked out Ned Carpenter in the eighth round of a bout billed for ten here.

FREE GRAND STAND SEAT TICKETS FOR THE BALL FANS

Ten men are going to the great Red Sox game today as guests of the Boston AMERICAN. They happen to hold little tickets on which were inscribed the award numbers in the gift plan of the Boston AMERICAN.

Every day ten numbers will be published on this page. If you happen to hold a check or ticket, of one of these numbers you can go to the Red Sox game and sit in the grandstand and enjoy the play.

If you do not want to go today you can go Monday, Tuesday or any day. The tickets can be made good for any day.

If you have none of these small tickets, call on any newsdealer or newsboy who is handling the AMERICAN, and he will supply you.

Watch the sporting page each day. Remember, ten numbers will be printed each day. On Sunday twenty five numbers will be printed. This means ten grand stand tickets to the big games each day and 100 free tickets on Sunday.

The tickets are given without charge. They are absolutely free to the Boston AMERICAN readers.

Numbered tickets good in exchange for grandstand seats can be handed into the Boston AMERICAN Premium Department, No. 5 Winthrop square, where you get the pasteboard that will admit you to the big games. If you cannot call we will forward tickets by mail.

HAPPY DAVIS WINS.

BALTIMORE, June 29.—Harry Baker of Buffalo surprised the supporters of Happy Davis in the main event of fifteen rounds before the Baltimore Men's Athletic Association at the Empire Theatre last night. Davis won, but it was one of the toughest battles of his career. Al Rogers of Buffalo was given the decision over Abe, the newsboy, in the other fifteen-round affair.

ENGLISHMEN SHOW SPEED.

LONDON, June 29.—The Essex county cricketers gave a splendid display of batting in the cricket match against the Australians. The batsmen completely mastered the Australian bowling, and at the close of the day's play had scored 411 runs for two wickets.

U. of P. Cricket Players Lose in Second

HAMILTON, Bermuda, June 29. The second match played here by the University of Pennsylvania cricket team resulted in a defeat of the Americans. The Hamilton Cricket Club won a victory by an innings and forty runs.

YOUNG O'BRIEN LOSES.

PHILADELPHIA, June 29.—Teddy Maloney of the Olympia A. A. bested Young Jack O'Brien in six rounds. O'Brien's longer reach and speed allowed him to stand as usual, but he could not fight Maloney off.

THE BOSTON AMERICAN'S DAILY DOUBLE

The June Bride of 1912

Startling Facts Concerning New Ideas in Wedding Gowns

By OLIVETTE

"WHY doesn't the modern bride wear her veil over her face as her mother did?" That's one of the absurd questions a Mere Man asked me at a recent wedding where the beautiful bride was dressed in the very latest mode with a wedding veil arranged cap like under a crown of tiny white roses.

Foolish man. The old fashion of throwing back the veil massed up the bride's hair as it's been discarded."

"I thought it was symbolic," said the M. M. vaguely.

"When symbols and fashions clash the steam roller goes over the symbols fast enough."

With that he subsided, as he should, and was left to view as nice a wedding as one could wish for. The bride wore white chiffon over white satin, quite a simple frock with a beautiful lace veil as chief decoration. This veil, which had excited the M. M.'s comment, was arranged almost like a frilled cap on the head and was certainly much prettier than the ordinary bunched up affair. The same arrangement can be carried out in tulle, and if the tulle is edged with a small val. edging the effect is quite charming. Don't hem the tulle, sew the lace on carefully to a well-cut edge.

The June bride is a sort of pattern to her Summer and Autumn sister, and the girl who marries later in the Summer has the advantage of innumerable bargain sales in everything that is included in the trousseau. Lingerie, lace, fawn, not to speak of satin for the wedding gown, all these things are cheaper at this season.

Every girl wants to be married in white, but the fashionable wedding dress is an elephant in the married woman's wardrobe unless she intends to have it done over into an evening gown.

Except for very elaborate weddings, travelling suits are becoming more and more popular for the marriage ceremony. The travelling suit idea can be strained a point and developed into quite elaborate afternoon frocks or coat and skirt suits with handsome waists. These are more serviceable and practical. But the sentimental woman doesn't feel that she's quite married unless she wears satin and a veil, and, after all, she should forget economy for once in her life, even if she finds her satin frock useless forever after.

THE GREAT MENACE

By FRANCES L. GARSIDE

THERE are some men with very high brows and with spectacles with very thick glasses who affirm that the great menace of every city is germs.

They shake all the words they know into a box, pour in a bottle of glue and make one word of all that stick together. This word describes the worst germs, and is so long it could be cut up and furnish enough alphabet blocks for every child in the land.

They tell of germs in water of immense size, so large if what they say is true the law should compel them to wear bathing suits.

They put things on such a strict sanitary basis that a man is no longer permitted to enjoy the comfort of chewing the ends of his mustache unless he first has them boiled.

They inaugurate a Kiss-Not crusade that equips every lover with a lemon, for a kiss means simply a swap of three million germs.

They frighten every one but Daysey Mayme Appleton, who has found a greater menace.

Ooh—Burglar!

"Their ruffle-trimmed words, with long trains," said Daysey Mayme, "cause consternation, I admit. But I find that in Boston people recognize a greater menace, and that menace is The Burglar!

"They meet directions for antiseptic measures with questions about burglar alarms, and know more ways for keeping a burglar out than any burglar ever knew for getting in.

"They possess beautiful, solid silver tableware and costly jewelry, they will relate with pride, but they keep it in a safety vault. Every woman uses plated and imitation, and boasts of the costly and elegant stuff she has in storage.

"When a Boston girl marries, a preparation for her wedding is to rent a vault in which to deposit all the silverware she expects to receive. And regularly, and so often, she visits the vault and looks over her possessions as solemnly as one gazes at a family tomb.

"Satisfied that nothing has been disturbed, she departs and uses plated ware with pride because she has solid ware locked away.

"She wears brass jewelry with a superior air. 'I am afraid of burglars,' she says, 'and keep my solid gold in a safety vault.' One feels SO secure with one's valuables where burglars can't get them.'

"'You must excuse me for giving you a power spoon,' she says to her guest. 'I have my solid silver, gold-lined spoons in storage. It is SO much safer, you know.'

Few? Then Wear 'Em

"This is true of all who have many valuables; those who have few wear them when they go out.

"I realize that when I am on the street at night I sound like a milk wagon full of empty cans," continued Daysey Mayme, "but I pay no storage rent, and leave nothing behind for burglars. What do I do with our silverware, you ask?"

(N. B.—Of course, you hadn't asked it. That was put in because it is customary with the Best Writers.)

"I wear it! I have anklets of silver teaspoons, bracelets of sugar spoons and pickle forks, a belt of tablespoons, and a necklace with a silver sugar bowl for a locket.

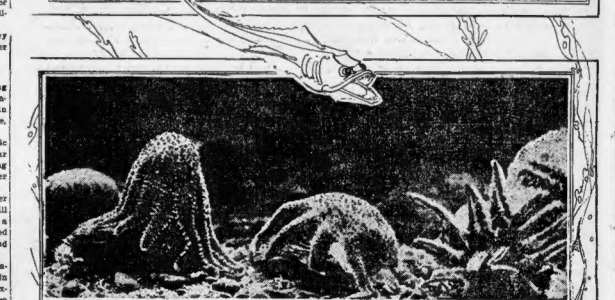
"In a way these schemes to defeat the burglar have originated many of our unique fashions. Every woman is so built that when she leaves her home unguarded at night she can wear all the christening mugs, the soup tureens, and knives, forks and spoons on her person.

"This is the reason the pannier overskirt has been introduced. The women simply had to have more fullness on the hips for concealing the cream pitcher and coffee pot."

Marvels of the Water World---By Garrett P. Serviss

The Inhabitants of the Sea Bed Are a-Gleam with Strange and Lustrous Beauty

FLOWERS OF THE DEPTHS—A GROUP OF SEA ANEMONES



A MEAL—SUN STARFISH DEVOURING OYSTERS AND MUSSELS.

IN a former article in the AMERICAN some pictures were exhibited of the wonderful creatures of the deep sea—animals whose progenitors apparently sought the gloom of the ocean's bottom in preference to remaining in the brighter world of shallow water above.

We saw how many of these animals, in order to find their way about in the sunless depths that surround them, have developed phosphorescent organs which enable them to provide a light of their own, while others, as if abandoning the use of eyes altogether, have gradually lost the organs of vision possessed by their relatives above. We also saw that these deep-sea animals, living where there is no sunlight to bring out the effects of color, are generally very dark of hue, if not absolutely black, and destitute of the brilliant marking possessed by creatures which revel in the sunlight.

Today we show pictures of animals which inhabit parts of the sea bed which do not lie so deep that some sunshine cannot penetrate there, and which, in contrast with the inhabitants of the great abysses, are so brilliantly adorned with colors that naturalists describing them have to compare them with the most glorious gems, such as rubies, emeralds and sapphires. They exceed the most beautiful flowers in splendor, because their bodies are frequently composed of more or less translucent (light-penetrable) tissues, which often seem to be self-luminous. This gives a vivacity to their colors which only polished and highly refractive jewels possess.

A sight of beauty in the depths. This sea anemone, when in the water, is a delicate pink, and one does not have to stretch the imagination to liken it to a rose or chrysanthemum.

Among these are the jelly fishes, the corals, and the sea-anemones—"anemone" meaning a wild flower. But no flower has so much liveliness of color as these animals exhibit. Yet when these same animals are taken out of the water they lose nearly all their brilliance.

Beautiful in Water

Even animals that by their forms are repulsive, when taken out of their element, such as sea-spiders, spider-crabs, hermit-crabs, star-fishes, and sea-urchins, are very beautiful when seen in the water. They stalk about there, like strange knights clothed in shining, damascened armor. Some seem to be decorated with burning jewels. The light around them is faint compared with that out of the water, and their brilliant, translucent colors displayed in their dim world go far to counteract the relative gloom of their surroundings.

In some places the sea bed, at no great depth along the shores, is wonderfully crowded with these creatures, and the different species live together, in immediate proximity, as we do not see different families of animals doing on the earth's surface—except, perhaps, in a menagerie. It is almost as if one should, in some remote part of Africa, come upon a landscape where lions, leopards, giraffes, zebras, elephants, buffaloes and antelopes were feeding and hunting together, in a splendid confusion of color and form. You can get some idea of the strangeness of the life of the sea by visiting the aquarium and studying the various tanks filled with swimming and crawling creatures.

But peace and brotherhood do not prevail in these under-sea communities any more than they do on the surface of the earth. There are battles for supremacy and for life there as here. Some species are the natural prey of others. The beautiful starfish is a very tiger in his native haunts. The sun-starfish is a terrible enemy of oysters, and devours them by thousands in spite of their stout shells.

Wonderful Sight

Nothing could be more wonderful than a jellyfish floating like an iridescent cloud in the water, which is his atmosphere. The trailing membranes of some species of jellyfish and sea-anemones are inexpressibly beautiful. Yet among these splendid creatures are found some which are not only without beauty of color, but so shapeless that they look rather like bits of rock or stone than living animals. Some, too, seem to conceal such beauty as they possess from all outer view. The outside of the oyster is rugged and repulsive, but within the shell, when exposed to light, sometimes exhibits a marvellous play of prismatic color. Some species of oysters secrete, forever concealed inside the shell, the most splendid pearls, which, when taken out and exposed to the sunlight or lamplight, reveal indescribable beauty. It seems strange that objects whose beauty depends entirely upon the play of light should never show that beauty except when they are accidentally brought out of their natural surroundings.

Much of the splendor of the life of the sea, as it is usually beheld from above, is due to corals. A view through a "water telescope" of the coral reefs of Bermuda or other tropical islands fills the beholder with as much astonishment as delight. But the casual observer of these scenes generally sees but little of the real wonders of the sea bed. It is the naturalist who sees the real "gulfs enchanted," and occasionally catches sight of some bejewelled creature issuing from a dark cavern, gleaming in the dim light and stalking about in search of his prey. The "gems of ocean" that poets have imagined are mostly living gems.

DANGER PERIOD OF WOMAN'S LIFE FROM 45 to 50

Interesting Experience of Two Women—Their Statements Worth Reading.

Asheville, N.C.—"I suffered for years with female trouble while going through the Change of Life. I tried a local physician for a couple of years without any substantial benefit. Finally after repeated suggestions to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, I quit my physician and commenced using it with the happiest results. I am today practically a well woman and anxious to contribute my mite towards inducing others to try your great medicine, as I am fully persuaded that it will cure the ailments from which I suffered if given a fair chance.

"If you think this letter will contribute anything towards further introducing your medicines to afflicted women who are passing through this trying period, it is with great pleasure I consent to its publication."—Mrs. JULIA A. MOORE, 17 East St., Asheville, N. C.

The Case of Mrs. Kirlin.

Circleville, Ohio.—"I can truthfully say that I never had anything do me so much good during Change of Life as Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

"Before I had taken one half a bottle of it I began to feel better, and I have continued taking it. My health is better than it has been for several years. If all women would take it they would escape untold pain and misery at this time of life."—Mrs. ALICE KIRLIN, 358 W. Mill St., Circleville, Ohio.

The Change of Life is one of the most critical periods of a woman's existence. At such times women may rely upon Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

A Bachelor's Diary

He Again Sees Josephine and Has a Hard Time Fighting Off the Old Infatuation

By MAX

MAY 17.—I have at last learned what women mean when they say one can't do thus and so "with children in the house," and one of the impossibilities where there are children is to chronicle faithfully all that happens in a diary.

We have an early tea, a meal designed solely for infantile stomachs, and I find my own thriving on it, and after tea there comes an hour when I romp with the children, sacrificing all my dignity to their tyranny and whims, and enjoying it as I have enjoyed few things before.

We play bear. I ransack my brain for every old acquaintance with goblins and fairies, and have told them so often of little things I did when I was a boy that they know the stories by heart. The time I rode the cow to the pasture and fell off into the mud pond—I have told that fifty times, and if I vary as much as a word they make me begin over again.

The Whipping Scene

It happened one warm day in June. I had on a new blue suit trimmed with braid and brass buttons, and got whipped when I reached home dripping with mud. I have even had to go back to childhood and count the buttons, and if I omit one detail of the strapping my father gave me my little audience rises up and roars that it is being cheated. I must even make a face to show how I felt as each blow fell, and after I have told of the whipping I am compelled to give an illustration of how I walked from the woodshed back to the house, with one hand rubbing the place where the blows had fallen and the other wiping my tears away.

They particularly enjoy this story because of the suffering I underwent. I find that children in a way are abandoned little wretches, and delight in some other one's punishment.

Every night Richards, the nurse, gets cross because I keep them up beyond their regular hour, and every night I carry them pack horse fashion up to the nursery, and promise I won't do it again.

And every night I wait till they are ready for bed that I may hear them say their prayers. Elizabeth always prays for Uncle Max, and Manette, who is more fickle, just as often forgets.

I have noticed that Elizabeth offers up a strange petition concerning me.

"Keep Uncle Max from doing the wrong thing," she always says at the close of her prayer, and one night when she had said it and climbed on my knees for a final hug, I said: "Why do you ask that for Uncle Max, Honey Bee? Do you think he may do something wrong?"

He Needed Prayer

She fixed on me those big brown eyes that remind me so much of poor Mary's, and said:

"Aunt Mary said little children's prayers went straight to heaven, and sometimes big folks prayers didn't, and she said I must ask that for her sake."

"Keep Uncle Max from doing the wrong thing!" And Mary recognized that there is a wrong thing I am tempted to do and that will mean my ruination!

May heaven ordain that the prayer of the child will prevail, for if there is any one thing I long to do it is that very thing Mary sought to save me from.

And that is, go back to Josephine! I think of her constantly, and the harder I fight against her the greater my longing for her.

When I hold the children in my arms I think of Josephine. When Manette's little golden curls brush against my face I long for Josephine. When I kiss the children I am reminded of her lips and the wild joy I would know if I would only put my anger aside and hold out my arms to her.

I have seen her again. I had told Thompson to drive with the children to a certain spot in the park where the dandelions grow thickest and to wait for me there. It was the place where Josephine passed me a week before, when she was in the car with Dribbles.

I do not know that this is the reason I asked him to wait for me there, though it meant something to me to go back where I had seen her, and try to live over that brief meeting again. I know that I remembered there was where Manette had so much fun picking the flowers.

"You will wait for me there," I told him, and I arranged to come up from town on a car, and meet him. Richards, the nurse, was engaged for the afternoon, and I was sure Thompson would see no danger befall the babies for that brief ride.

I had left the office unusually depressed. Everything was all right in a business way. Everything always is. It seems to me I have never made as much money in twice the time as I have made since I lost Josephine, and no longer have the incentive of providing for her.

I had money enough for the children and myself. I argued on my way to the park. Why not quit the game, take the babies and their nurse and go abroad? Perhaps, I thought, I could get away from this fever of unrest if I were amid new scenes.

His Remedy

It was a foolish notion. No one can run away from an infatuation for a woman. I know that. The only way to recover from such infatuation is to marry the woman.

This struck me as such a grim remedy that I laughed out loud, and was still smiling at my folly when I jumped off the car, entered the park, turned a corner of shrubbery and trees and saw Josephine.

Thompson had taken the children to the place I directed, and was sitting in the carriage a little way up the road. Elizabeth sat at one end of a park bench, lonely and aloof, and at the other end sat Josephine with Manette on her lap.

There was a time when such a picture would have given me the wildest delight. Always during our brief engagement I had dared to picture the time when the greatest joy that can come to a home would come to ours. The dream of Josephine with a child in her arms had been the sweetest, and most sacred dream I had ever known.

But I remembered none of this when I saw her with arms around Manette. I remembered only that when the Tom Jones little chap died, and I went to her for sympathy, she had said she hated children!

I remembered also that much Josephine does is with an end in view. I seemed to have a clearer vision, and in that vision I saw her as I had never seen her during the days of our engagement—selfish, frivolous, vain, designing!

But even while my head recognized the qualities in her that can mean happiness for no man, my heart cried out for her!

Such a paradox is a man who is infatuated. I will not say "in love." It seems to me "infatuation" better expresses the sentiment Josephine has always inspired in me.

And I know, to my cost, that in comparison with that sentiment love is a simple and sane emotion easy to control.

Instinctively I turned toward Elizabeth. Somehow I felt the child of seven understood.

She flew into my arms, and all during my walk with Josephine she held an almost frantic hold of my hand. Her face took on an expression that even almost old, and her big eyes looked as sombre as if she had seen into the future, and there was trouble there.

I can write no more tonight, Diary. After writing the above, I went up stairs for a peep into the nursery, and somehow wasn't surprised to find Elizabeth awake.

Nor was I surprised to find she had been crying. When I asked her what was wrong she held up her arms to be lifted out of bed, and I sat with her in my lap till she fell asleep.

But never did she say what was wrong. I did not insist. Somehow I knew.

A Mysterious Disappearance — One of the Greatest Detective Stories Ever Written — By Gordon Holmes

TODAY'S INSTALMENT

PART II.

Copyright, 1905, by Edward J. Clode.

"I WAS there myself, you know."

"Yes, sir, I have not forgotten that. But it shows what a clever rascal the fellow is in concealing his identity. However, he could never have counted on my discovering that letter of his. Even if he is not in America we shall have some reliable data to go upon in answer to my queries."

"There I fully agree with you. You will have done a great deal if you thoroughly clear up the mystery regarding Corbett. May I ask you to let me know the result?"

"With pleasure, sir. And now, can I request a favor in return?"

"Certainly."

"Tell me, then, what is, in your opinion, the best way to find Mrs. Hillmer."

Bruce did not expect to be thus openly challenged on the matter. It was one thing to withhold his own theories and discoveries from this representative of the majesty of the law, but quite another to refuse to help a detective with whom he was nominally working.

Besides, Mrs. Hillmer had four days' start. It would take some time—possibly a telegram would not be sufficiently explicit—to obtain the desired assistance from the Continental police. Yet—in this instance, Mesmore must take his chances.

"If I were you," said Bruce, slowly weighing his words, "I would inquire at the Continental booking offices at Victoria and Charing Cross, and from the guards in charge of the morning mail trains on the 30th. In fact, it would be quite safe if you were to wire the authorities at Monte Carlo, asking if Mrs. Hillmer is not now at the Hotel du Cercle."

The detective started as though he had been shot.

"What!" he cried. "You think she is there all the time?"

"I think she has been there since Wednesday morning."

"That is what I mean. Why did you not tell me sooner?"

"Because you never asked me. And now, Mr. White, one word of advice: Go slow."

"It's all jolly fine telling me to go slow when I have no reason to go fast. The case even against Corbett is shadowy enough at present."

"Exactly! Wait until you can grasp a substance."

"I will, sir," said White, jamming his hat on; but when I lay my hands on Corbett I will grasp him hard enough."

It took the policeman all that day to satisfy himself that Mrs. Hillmer had really booked for the Riviera by the Club train from Charing Cross on the preceding Monday.

Just as he verified the fact came a reply from the Monte Carlo police:

He Is Too Late

"Mrs. Hillmer arrived at the Hotel du Cercle on Wednesday. Left for Italy same afternoon. Shall we endeavor to trace her?"

"Oh, bother," he growled. "Corbett may be in Jerusalem by this time. And here have I been fussing about Wyoming or some other potato patch in the Far West."

However, he wired again to Monte Carlo:

"Yes. Locate Mrs. Hillmer, if possible. I will then telegraph instructions to local police."

When this message was dispatched he felt easier in his mind.

The chase was at least getting warm.

"I cannot arrest him yet," he reflected; "but if I once get fairly on his track, I will not lose sight of him again if I can help it. I suppose it will mean a trip to Italy for me. I must lay the evidence before the Treasury to see if a warrant is justified."

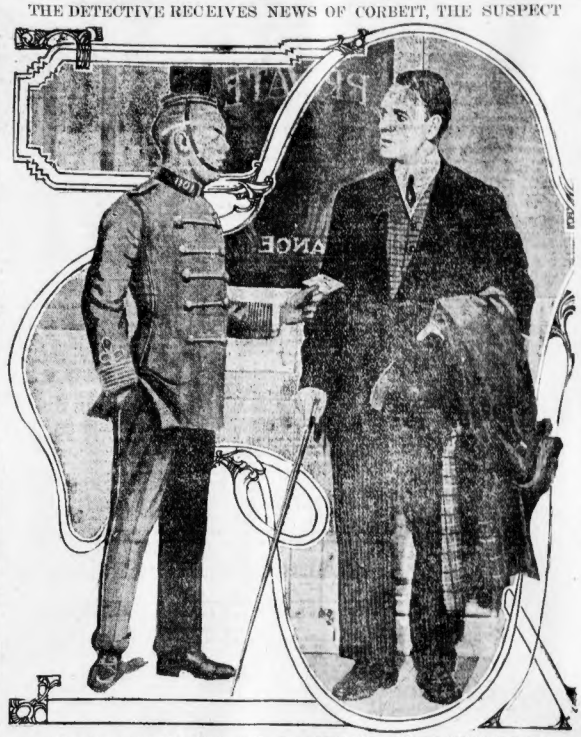
Two days passed without incident.

Late on Saturday evening, February 5, a Continental telegram was handed to him at Scotland Yard:

"Mrs. Hillmer's present address, Hotel Imperiale, Florence."

He promptly wired the chief of police at Florence:

THE DETECTIVE RECEIVES NEWS OF CORBETT, THE SUSPECT



"WHO'S THE CABLE FOR, BOY?" ASKED THE DETECTIVE. "WHITE, SCOTLAND YARD."

(Charles Winninger of "The Wall Street Girl" Company as White.)

"Keep Mrs. Hillmer, English visitor, Hotel Imperiale, under surveillance. Also watch her associates, particularly Englishman named Corbett, if there. Letter follows."

"That's a good stroke of business," said he, when the message was sent. "Now we shan't be long!"

It was in contented mood that he lit a cigar in his office, before walking home for dinner, but a messenger with the badge of the Commercial Cable Company in Northumberland avenue bustled past him.

"Who's the cable for, boy?" said the detective.

"White, Scotland Yard," was the answer.

He tore open the envelope and found that the contents were coded, but he caught the word "Corbett" amidst the unintelligible jumble.

With some excitement he rushed into the office to find the A B C code, and, after some confusion in deciphering the words, this was what he read:

"Regret delay in replying to your communication. Corbett left New York in White Star steamer due Liverpool February 4."

"February 4? Why, that's yesterday. Good gracious, he's here all the time. Well, of all the"——

But exclamations were useless. Calling another plain-clothes man to accompany him, he drove off in mad haste to Sloane Square.

About an hour later Bruce received a typewritten slip crammed on to a telegraph form. It was from Florence, and ran as follows:

"My brother wildly excited regarding allegations. We start for London tonight. Meanwhile fearful complications expected. Mr. Corbett, of Wyoming, my brother's friend, is probably occupying his flat, and may be arrested. We both trust you to save him. Wire us at Modane or Gare du Nord.

GWENDOLINE HILLMER.

So Bruce also raced off in a hansom toward Sloane Square.

Mr. Sydney H. Corbett.

Still detective glanced up at Bruce's chambers while passing through Victoria street.

"I wonder what he would think if he knew what we are after," he said to his colleague, one of the two who accompanied him when the barrister was arrested by mistake.

"What are we after?" said the policeman.

"This time we are going to nail the right Corbett," was the confident answer.

"Will we cart him off?"

"Well, now that depends. I think I am quite right in collaring him unless he explains to my satisfaction, which is hardly likely."

"The charge is one of murder, isn't it?"

"Yes."

"Who did he kill?"

"Well, up to now it hasn't come out, for the sake of the family. But if Corbett is here you will know soon enough."

"It's a funny way to go to work."

"Commissioner's orders, my boy. I am not to reveal the la—the same until it cannot be helped. However, as I have said so much, I don't mind telling you it's a woman, and a big one too."

"Big! Fat, do you mean?"

"No. A woman of high position."

"Phew! A regular society scandal I suppose?"

"That's about the size of it."

On arrival at Sloane Square they quickly ascended to No. 12 Raleigh Mansions.

A stout, elderly woman answered their knock, and a glance at her face revealed the map of Ireland, although her name was Saxon Robinson.

"Mr. Corbett in?" inquired White.

"Faix, he's not."

"Then where is he?"

"I don't know, misther, an' if I did I wouldn't be after telling when axed in an onciv'l manner."

"All right, Mrs——"

"Robinson's my name, if that's anny use to ye."

"Very well, Mrs. Robinson. We wish to have a word with Mr. Corbett, and we will be much obliged if you can tell us when he is likely to return, if he is in London."

"Arrah, it's meself is mixed intirely about him. Sure this Mr. Corbett is in London right enough, and is comin' in to dinner in half an hour, so by yer lave I'll bet go on wid me wurruk."

"May we come in and wait for him?"

Corbett Arrives

Mrs. Robinson surveyed them suspiciously, but seemingly decided in their favor.

"Slip in here, gintlemen, both," she said, and conducted them to the sitting room.

A fire now burned in the grate wherein Bruce had made his pregnant discovery. The damaged bracket still stared at White, so to speak, but he saw it not.

Mrs. Robinson bustled away to the kitchen, and the two others sat silently waiting developments. Suddenly a thought occurred to White, and he went into the passage.

"Mrs. Robinson," he said, "what did you mean by referring to this Mr. Corbett?"

A quick step came bounding up the stairs, and a key rattled in the lock.

"You'd better ax him yerself," responded the housekeeper pithily, and the door opened to admit a handsome, well-built man, tall and straight, with the clearly cut features of the true Westerner and the easy carriage of one accustomed to the freedom of the prairie.

He was quietly dressed. The only sign that he was not a Londoner was given by his wide-awake felt hat, the last token of environment relinquished by a wandering citizen from the region of the Rockies. In the semi-darkness of the interior he could but dimly discern the form of the detective behind the ready-fingered housekeeper.

"There's two gintlemen to see ye, Misther Corbett," said she.

To Be Continued Monday.

An Illuminator

NO one could have called him handsome. Small, ugly, with a hat two sizes too small, he stood in the corner grumbling to another man, who was waiting for the train.

"They're no soldiers," he remarked, indicating the local militia, who were hurrying to their drill hall. "They don't know how to walk like soldiers even. Anyone could see they're only bricklayers, shop boys and laborers. You can tell by the way they walk."

The would-be passenger looked bored, but the other still rambled on.

"Now, here comes a real old soldier, Great Scott, what a difference! You can see he's hin in the regulars. Look how he carries his rifle!"

"Don't you believe it," laughed the other. "That's my brother Bill. He's a lamplighter and he got that walk through carrying his pole about."

'PURE COMEDY!' CRIES COLONEL

OYSTER BAY, June 29.—"Pure comedy," is the way Colonel Roosevelt characterized William J. Bryan's Ryan-Morgan-Belmont resolution at the Baltimore convention.

"I would have no comment to make, no matter who is named by the Baltimore convention," declared the Colonel, "and think I have made it plain that it will not affect my attitude in his fight."

Nevertheless the Colonel did show a deep interest in the result of the ballots taken.

"They seem to remain much the same," he said as he glanced at a flat handed to him by one of the newspaper men showing the first and fourth ballots, before he noticed that Governor Wilson gained considerably. "Wilson has jumped twenty-six," he added. When he read the names of Harmon and Baldwin there was a note of derision in the Colonel's voice and at last, when he didn't find Bryan's name on the list of those voted for on the fourth ballot, he laughed and remarked:

"Bryan has lost 100 per cent."

"Two hundred, I think, Colonel," one of the reporters said, and again Roosevelt laughed.

"Oh, did he have two votes," he asked. Then he put the list aside with the comment that it showed terrible frustration.

Day Baker, the General New England Manager of the General Vehicle Company, has just returned from Montreal, where he was invited to appear before the new Montreal Electrical Society as its first speaker.

Mr. Baker addressed the society on "The Electric Vehicle, Its Status and Its Future," illustrating his paper with lantern slides and moving pictures. One of the latter showed the electric van in the parade which took place in Boston on Memorial Day.

The merchandising of motor cars is rapidly undergoing a radical change. When automobiles were first introduced the average buyer was about as competent to judge a car as he was a locomotive. He heard a lot of technical talk about "carburetors," "magnetos," "differential" and "transmission," looked wise and felt foolish.

But the buyer soon learned what all these things meant in their driving his first car. He had to acquire a smattering of engineering or mechanics or be lowed home.

One automobile factory was quick to recognize this change—his necessity for "showing" the buyer. The Moon Motor Car Company of St. Louis in its advertising and in its personal sale talk, has been translating technical terms into every-day English for three years, says C. G. Andrews of the Andrews Distributing Company, local distributors of the Moon car, the result being that the reader understands the industry better than ever.

WILSON SERENE AS NEWS COMES

SEA GIRT, N. J., June 29.—The situation at Baltimore," said Governor Wilson when he learned the result of the fifth ballot, "reminds me of a story I once heard.

"Two men were riding in an automobile with a certain town as their destination, when they met a man in the roadway. 'How far is it to town?' they asked. 'Twenty miles,' the man replied.

"They drove at a forty-mile gait for half an hour and met another man, whom they stopped and asked the same question. 'Twenty miles,' was his reply. They repeated this half an hour later and for the third time got the same reply.

"'Well,' said one of them to his companion, 'think heaven, Jim, we're holding our own.'

No one to look at the New Jersey executive, would have guessed that upon the results of the evening session at Baltimore depended perhaps the political future of Governor Wilson.

The most strenuous thing on his day's schedule was his advent to the realm of the "movies." An army of picture men and reels of pictures of the Jersey executive, Mrs. Wilson and her three daughters, the Misses Jessie, Eleanor and Margaret, will be shown also.

LOVE LETTERS NEW CLEW IN BRISTOL DEATH MYSTERY

BRISTOL, R. I., June 29.—The Bristol County police, after following up several clews, today declared an arrest may be expected at any moment in the mysterious slaying of Antonio Trigiano, twenty-seven years old, who is believed to have been ambushed and slain by a rival for the love of a pretty Providence girl. The killing of Trigiano is the fifth in Rhode Island within a month, and the third in a week. A bundle of love letters was found in Trigiano's trunk. In one of these letters, the girl implored Trigiano to wait for her until she was allowed to marry him. It told of parental objections to the match because of her youth. She protested her undying love.

DIG 2 FROM UNDER 6 TONS OF EARTH IN SALEM CAVE-IN

Buried under six tons of boulders and earth when part of the cellar of the new Comique Theatre at Salem caved in, Thomas J. Freeman, No. 17 Lamont street, and Albert J. Douglas, No. 12 Mill street, Salem, were dug out badly bruised.

They were working in the cellar in a busy squad. Above them was a fifteen-foot wall of earth, topped with large stones, formerly the foundations of buildings which were razed to make room for the new building.

BEGIN WORK FOR NEW PROVIDENCE TUNNEL

PROVIDENCE, June 29.—The New Haven Railroad today began the work of land condemnation for a new street car tunnel under the College Hill. Work on the bore will be started this Summer. The layout shows a tunnel that will pass under Rhode Island School of Design, the University Club, the Brown University Library, the Rhode Island Historical Society and Churchill House. The tunnel will start at North Main and Waterman streets.

WILLIAM C. STEWART DYING ALONE AT HOME

NEW YORK, June 29.—William C. Stewart, father of Mrs. Nonnie Stewart Leeds, is dying in the Leeds mansion at Sea Cliff, South Morningside Avenue, Manhasset, N. J. His wife and his step-daughter, Miss Perne Pankhurst, are not at his bedside. Mrs. Leeds, who inherited $30,000,000 from her husband, W. B. Leeds, the tin plate king, is hurrying home from Europe to see her father before the end.

TO-DAY'S STOCK MARKETS; FINANCIAL NEWS

Stock Trading Is Quiet, but Market Is Firm

By W. H. ROSS.

STATE STREET, June 29.—The Boston market opened quiet and remained dull. The tone was generally firm. During the first hour Nevada Consolidated and Butte & Superior advanced, but most of the actually active coppers remained unchanged. Mohawk sold fractionally lower.

Outside of the copper list there were small recessions in United Fruit and American Zinc.

Frederick H. Baird will become on July 1 a member of the firm of Hayden, Stone & Co., with which he has been connected for twenty years.

Shareholders of the Republic Rubber Co. will vote at the annual meeting in August on a proposition to increase the capital stock from $1,000,000 to $10,000,000.

Coastwise steamship companies expect a general walkout this afternoon of members of the Atlantic Coast Seamen's Union and Marine Firemen's Union, and 50,000 men may be involved.

Stronger Tone in New York.

The New York market had a stronger tone at the opening and most of the railroad and industrial leaders made fractional gains, while a number of specialties were prominent in the trading. The strength for American Tobacco continued urgent and it advanced several points. Other strong issues were General Electric and Texas Company.

New York, Ontario & Western sagged badly because its directors passed the annual dividend. This action on their part had been expected, however, as there was accumulative buying of Steel, which sent it above 71 while a few minutes after the opening.

The curb was irregular.

American issues were quiet in the London market, but had a steady tone.

Copper Metal and Mining.

The copper metal market is now dull, and producers still selling agencies do not expect a resumption of ordering on a large scale until after the Copper Producers' Association has made public its next statement. The output for the present month is due on Monday. Copper has reported for export during June and continues to ramble at the metal in large amounts, it would seem as if that report ought to show a big total for the month. As to the situation ahead, Henry R. Merton & Co. of London says that the decline in shipments of stocks had been generally anticipated. The trade and financial interests of the country are now looking for large increases in stocks because the liquidation of standard copper were absorbed largely by consumers in communities of the situation and the increasing confidence on the part of the trade in the maintenance of the price for the time being. There has been a steady demand for all grades of copper, but the trade is not confident that sales was financed, mostly with dealers who were able to produce cash. It is thought that all the producers are now sold out until the middle of July. Lewisohn Brothers say that the Perth Amboy refinery strike was settled and will be in operation again on July 1. The Boston metal took place in the London market.

The Boston Financial News Bureau correspondent says, he thinks the Hancock shaft has struck into the Portable lode in the past fifty feet and is again in high class mineralization for a much longer time within that distance. This formation is identical with conditions in the Quincy lode in the existing workings.

The Butte special states there is little present to the copper situation, but that producers are looking for trouble later on. The high grade ore of the Calumet & Hecla mine is practically exhausted and that, moreover, any controversy which might arise would affect the Lake Superior operations in the great ore bodies it now controls.

The copper output of the Butte camp for June is placed at 75,000,000 pounds, or 2,500,000 pounds less than the May total, but there were fewer working days in June.

Financial News in Brief.

At a meeting of the directors of the United States Trust Company the regular semi-annual dividend of 10 per cent and an extra dividend of 2 per cent, was declared, payable July 1st to stockholders of record on July 25. The Old Colony Trust Company, which is one of the best managed and most conservative in the country, and A. C. Bilgsby, president; Albert K. Pillsbury, vice-president; Frederick H. Brewster, secretary, and Richard Pinkston, actuary.

July dividend and interest payments will amount to more than $250,000,000, and banks are busy today in providing funds for the distribution. A big shifting of bank balances will result, but the necessary readjustments will take only a few days. Exchange brokers predict that more gold will be shipped from Paris to New York next week. The half yearly settlements due in European week have checked the movement of gold abroad, but uncertain conditions will be more pronounced in the week later than.

Charles L. Stegeman & Co. have issued a graphic advices from Copperopolis, California, stating that settlement made by the Calaveras Smelting, Refining and Milling Co., which is handling at its Kenneth Simpler mill the high grade ore of the Calaveras Copper Company, on the first ten runs of ore shipped gave the Calaveras Copper Company net returns of $1,800, or $900 per ton of ore. Returns are reliable from the copper

Education---The Hope of the Future

The Human Race, Human Society, Must Be Treated Just as Doctors Treat a Patient—To Build Up, Not Down

Copyright, 1912, by American-Journal-Examiner

Keir Hardie, member of the House of Commons, and member of the British Independent Labor party, has announced "the aim of Socialists."

Of course, when any Socialist tells you what "the aim of the Socialists" is, you know that he is simply telling you what HE thinks as an individual.

Keir Hardie in England, Jules Jaures in France, Victor Berger, Charles E. Russell, Morris Hilquitt, William English Walling in America, representing Socialist belief in different ways, would each give you an entirely different "programme of Socialists."

And Victor Drury, a real representative of courageous, radical thought, if he cared to emerge from his retirement, would give you a programme different from all, because he looks further back, and sees further ahead, than any of those named.

Keir Hardie is not a great Socialist. He is a good LITTLE MAN, and, like all little men who imagine themselves radical, he can think of nothing more desirable than to level things downward.

If he were a monkey he would pull the monkeys from the top branches and say, "Let's all live near the ground, like brothers."

If he were a fish he would say, "Let's all stay near the shore, and none of us go out too deep."

If he were a bird he would say, "Let no bird fly more than fifty feet above the ground. Let's pull down the eagle and make him fly like a goose."

Being a well-meaning, but not well-informed, Socialist, he says, "We are going to master Parliament, control the State, wipe out class, and make the nation consist of citizens."

Humanity will never "wipe out class." The struggle of human beings has been to CREATE CLASS—that is to say, to create power, ability, knowledge ABOVE THE AVERAGE. Class simply means that one or a few have stepped further ahead than the others. There is no class among monkeys or among wolves—they are all "citizens" of monkeydom and wolfdom.

Man has the power of thought, the driving force of ambition; therefore, individually and in groups, men forge ahead, and classes are established.

Without the establishment of classes, and the incentives of vanity, selfishness and the other passions to which we owe our growth, there would have been no progress.

The problem is not, as poor, ignorant Keir Hardie says, "to wipe out class," but to extend classes, and to make ever broader and more nearly universal the privileges enjoyed by a few in the classes.

Once there was in this world a class of OWNERS OF BATHTUBS. This class consisted of Roman Emperors, and a few patricians and rich vulgarians. THEY had bathtubs; the others had none.

Keir Hardie would have destroyed the bathtubs, thus eliminating the bathtub class.

But nature and human evolution, wiser than Keir Hardie, made the bathtub class BIGGER. It now includes millions—and many Socialists are included among the millions in the bathtub class.

Keir Hardie wants a revolution to wipe out classes. No revolution has ever wiped out a class or ever will do that. Revolutions help men of one class to climb up into another class—but the classes are not eliminated.

You will always have classes, Mr. Hardie, while you have selfishness, cunning and unusual ability surrounded by ignorance, dullness and lack of ambition. And you will still have classes when humanity shall have progressed to heights of which we do not dream. Mr. Hardie's slight ability has raised him above his fellows—and he has not the slightest intention of going back whence he came.

Increase knowledge by education.

Diminish selfishness and idleness by education.

Encourage those that have power to take an interest in the weak—BY EDUCATION.

Fight injustice UNDER THE LEADERSHIP OF EDUCATION.

Remember that in the French Revolution—the greatest and noblest of all revolutions—not a single man lacking education ever came to the front. There was not, for instance, in the whole of that Revolution any leader with as little education and knowledge as Keir Hardie possesses.

And the most intelligent men of the seventeenth and eighteenth centuries—Voltaire, Rousseau, D'Alembert, Condorcet, all the encyclopedists—plowed the ground for the great Revolution.

EVERY ONE OF THEM BELONGED TO A "CLASS," AND COULD NOT BE FOUND IN A NATION DEVOID OF CLASSES. IF THE CLASSES HAD NOT EXISTED IN FRANCE THERE WOULD NOT HAVE BEEN A REVOLUTION—THERE WOULD HAVE BEEN A TRIBE OF STUPID, BRUTAL, IGNORANT "CITIZENS" WITH NO ESPECIAL POWER OF LEADERSHIP.

Without class and the power of class nothing would be done in England or in any other country to help the world along.

The foundation must be lifted slowly. Mr. Hardie is foolish when he says that he is not going "to patch up the existing order of society and make it a little more tolerable," but that he is going to "overthrow the existing order" and build up something entirely new.

If Keir Hardie had the gout, the rheumatism and the toothache he would go to a doctor and a dentist and say, "Patch me up." He would not be at all pleased if the doctor and the dentist said, "No; we are going to hit you on the head, and build up an entirely new Keir Hardie."

The human race, human society, must be treated just as the doctors treat a patient. Sometimes there must be a surgical operation, and a leg cut off, or even part of a lung removed—that is like the French Revolution or the revolution of Cromwell.

Sometimes a little massage, a little osteopathic treatment will answer.

But everything must be done by patching up. You cannot knock the social organization on the head and build it up afresh.

Good Mr. Hardie, with his cap and his barbarous whiskers and his rank pipe and his untidy clothes, would be quite happy if he could "make the nation consist of citizens, by which he means, make the whole nation LIKE HIM.

We beg to assure Mr. Hardie that the day will come when a real civilization would look upon a nation of Keir Hardies just about as the civilization of today looks upon the interesting nation of monkeys now dwelling in the holy city of Benares.

Too Much Devotion to Local Interests

Written for the Boston American by

DR. C. H. PARKHURST

A TENDENCY may be an innocent one and yet contain in it the seeds of mischief.

No one could reasonably find fault with the people in a particular portion of the city for the establishment and celebration of a day of their own, and yet it is just the kind of move that hides within itself all the possibilities of disintegration.

To the degree in which we emphasize local interest we diminish the pressure of general interest.

Assertion of Tendency Is Shown in Desire for Territorial Grabs

We cannot fence in our devotion without thereby preventing it, to that extent, from becoming a pervasive devotion.

We may concede the harmlessness of a "Dorchester Day" or a "Roxbury Day," yet the same principle is involved in it, only in small degree, that hinders the intense devotee of State rights from being a thorough nationalist. Cherishing one's own State with a monopolizing affection lowers and weakens the tone of one's patriotism. "Charity begins at home," to be sure, but the problem is to maintain a reasonable justment between charity intended for home consumption and charity designed for export.

The Civil War grew out of localized devotion.

The South had no love left for the country because of the lawlessness with which it had expended its all upon itself.

That is a danger to which we are nationally exposed and always will be—a danger enhanced by the fact that the tremendous extent and variety of our territory give occasion for a multiplicity of different and divergent interests; and yet there are those in great numbers who are possessed of so contracted a foresight that they would like to go on annexing territory indefinitely, absorbing Canada, swallowing Mexico and the Central and South American republics, and bagging the Indies and the Islands of the Pacific.

It was the assertion of this same tendency that routed the reciprocity treaty with Canada.

Devotion to local interests on the part of some checkmated devotion to collective interests on the part of the rest.

Protective tariff rests upon the support of the same impulse and results from the success with which a minority of producers, acting in disregard and contempt of the general advantage, and at the expense of that advantage, can go on maintaining advantages of their own.

If we call the attempted withdrawal of the Southern States geographical secession, that which we are commenting on now is economic secession and is inherently of the nature of treason so far as it is an assault upon the weal of the collective whole; and that is what protective tariff is.

Encouraging Sign in People's Writing of United States "Is"

With all the disintegrating tendencies that are at work in our country, our life as a people nevertheless betrays one exceedingly encouraging symptom; this, namely, that we are learning to write "United States" with a singular rather than with a plural verb, and to say the "United States IS" rather than the "United States ARE," thereby indicating the nationalizing of our consciousness and the resolving of confederate multiplicity into federal unity.

WHATEVER one writes on a slate can be easily erased with a wet sponge, so that, while anything put upon it that is fine can be left standing, anything of the contrary sort can be readily rubbed out.

One often wishes something of a similar kind might hold true of the life one is living, and that, while everything that is excellent in that life, whether in the shape of thought, word or deed, is sure to remain, there might be some sort of erasure by which whatever is bad in it might be expunged.

It is due to our thoughtlessness that we do not realize that the strokes of our life are laid down in fast colors, and that whatever transpires in it gives its own tinge to everything that takes place in it in days and years following.

We can never rub out the effects of what has been.

If we could analyze ourselves—that is to say, if we could take ourselves to pieces in the way in which a chemist can resolve into its original elements the object which he investigates in his laboratory—we should discover in ourselves traces of all the things we have done and all the thoughts and feelings which we have cherished.

This is equivalent to saying that we can never altogether get away from our past years.

They are constantly operating to give direction to what we are going to be in years to come. If a ball is shot out of a cannon it continues to move toward the point at which it was originally aimed at the moment when the piece was discharged, and it is no easy matter to deflect it from that line.

Tendencies have in them very little elasticity.

As the twig is bent the tree is inclined.

Serious as this truth is in its relations to the individual, it acquires an infinitely greater significance when considered in reference to the broader and mightier life of a great people.

Every national event is momentous, for the nation will never get altogether away from it. It will remain with it and in it to bless it or curse it.

Beneficial Influence of a National Crisis Depends Upon People's Attitude

It is impossible to understand how any man with any grasp upon things can contemplate a national crisis without being quieted, sobered, and even solemnized by the long reach of influence in which the crisis is certain to issue.

To have such a situation dominated by clamor, rancor and frenzy is symptom of a distraction of mind or of a criminality of intent that is ominous of a long train of disaster.

Have YOU Ever Been "On the Inside?" Here Is Your Chance to "Get in"

EVERYBODY likes to be "On the inside."

It isn't necessary to specify on the inside of WHAT.

It is just human nature to want to know in advance of others what is going to happen.

In this column today the Sunday Editor is permitted to take the readers of the Boston AMERICAN into his confidence and put them "on the inside" as to what is being done for the entertainment of the readers of tomorrow's Sunday AMERICAN.

* * *

To begin with, there is to be an announcement in Sunday's AMERICAN which will concern every citizen of these New England States. Nothing like it has ever been equalled in New England journalism. It concerns something that will be of vital importance in the development of New England. Everybody in Maine, New Hampshire, Vermont, Massachusetts and Rhode Island, who has the interests of his State at heart, who has money invested in these States, who owns property, conducts business of any sort, and even those who do not, will be deeply interested in this announcement. To say more about it at this time would be indiscreet.

Turning from the serious to the romantic, the Sunday AMERICAN will print tomorrow a series of most unusual romances concerning Boston people.

Of course you have noticed when in the Back Bay district the remarkable number of beautiful young women bustling about with musical instruments, music rolls and the like. You have probably heard in a general way, too, that some 5,000 girls come to Boston every year for their musical education. Well, there are eight of these girls in particular who came to Boston last season to study music.

They all came from the same section of the country and they were all very serious in their musical endeavors. But Cupid seems to have appreciated these young ladies more than the music muse, and all eight of these young girls are going to get married. Did you ever hear of such a remarkable situation before?

There's another romance, a double one in this case, which concerns Boston people, wherein moving pictures of the nuptials, a round trip bridal train from coast to coast, and many millions are involved. The Sunday AMERICAN will print some very handsome pictures of the brides and the details of this most remarkable double wedding.

Returning for a moment to those very good-looking young ladies who descend every year upon Boston to become famous singers and musicians, or to attend Boston's famous colleges, did you ever stop to think what must be their trials and hardships and experiences? There is in Boston at the present time a girl—probably there are hundreds who have had almost the same experiences—but there is this particular one who has had a career which every young girl who aspires to come to the Great City to win fame and fortune will be interested in reading.

This girl came from a little country village, almost without money, with no experience of the ways of the world outside her own village home, but with a limitless amount of pluck and determination. That is about all she could sing. The village singing master had said so. She came to Boston to study. She is here yet. She has fought a great fight. You'll be interested to read of her experiences in Sunday's AMERICAN.

* * *

Mr. Nick Young, the eminent dramatic critic, strayed from his usual haunts the other day with his friend, Mr. Moynahan, the distinguished artist, and visited Nantasket Beach. According to Mr. Young and Mr. Moynahan there are many things happen at Nantasket which happen nowhere else east of Hurley, Wis. Mr. Young says that Hurley and Hull team along together as the widest open towns on the map. If you've ever been at Nantasket—and who hasn't—you'll enjoy some of the sly things Mr. Nick Young has to say about the people down there and the very illuminating illustrations Mr. Moynahan has drawn.

Boston—through the initiative of the Chamber of Commerce—has instituted a movement for the benefit of her boys and girls. When a boy or girl graduates from high school, unless he has college plans, he faces a great crisis in his life. He must go to work, and his whole life may depend on what kind of a job he takes at that time. He may step into some position where he will be "stuck" for life without chance of ever bettering himself. He may on the other hand select some trade or business where he may win fortune, become the head of a big institution, or become famous.

Boston is trying to solve the problems of the boys and girls. Trained experts are encouraging the youngsters to tell their preferences, to show what skill they have along definite lines, to select the calling most suited to them. If you have a boy or a girl and don't know just what to "make" out of them you would do well to look up this latest of educational plans. The story will be printed exclusively in Sunday's AMERICAN.

* * *

The matter of the High Cost of Living concerns every man's home. You have probably read of the strike of Boston women against the high prices of meat—but do you know how extensive the movement is becoming and what it will lead to? An article is being prepared for Sunday's AMERICAN, which will explain the whole situation.

* * *

People down in Wollaston, Quincy, Squantum and vicinity are greatly stirred up by a church dispute and people are taking sides. The situation is causing much disturbance to the townspeople—all of whom will want to read the story which will be printed in Sunday's AMERICAN.

* * *

There will be the announcement of another contest in Sunday's AMERICAN, too. The AMERICAN'S contests are growing more and more popular. The contest which will be announced tomorrow concerns particularly Boston's women. Watch for the announcement.

There will be also the announcement of the winners in the final "What Is She Doing?" contest.

The Princess contest is drawing to a close and every contestant will be vitally interested in the table of standings as well as in the page of portraits.

The usual Greater Boston League tickets for the youngsters will be printed in the sporting pages.

Room permits of but a bare mention of the AMERICAN'S incomparable comic section, its great magazine section and its entertaining City Life pages.

The constantly growing army of readers of the Sunday AMERICAN—Now England's Greatest Newspaper—testifies to the quality of these great features.
